

Roosevelt Asks Relief Drive Be the Cleanest Example of Enterprise

Salient Portions of Address Over Radio are Remarks on Works, Legislation and His Note of Optimism.

"FEAR VANISHING"

Tells Critics That Program Is Not Confused But That Wholesome Foundation Is Laid.

Washington, April 29 (AP).—After appealing to all Americans to help make the $4,880,000,000 work-relief drive "the most efficient and cleanest example of public enterprise the world has ever seen," President Roosevelt tonight said that the vast undertaking, "in full swing by autumn,"

Meantime congress faced the prospect of a prolonged session extending well into the hot summer. The president, in the "fireside chat" in which he outlined his work relief program, had called for action on such controversial issues as social security, extension of NRA, banking and utility holding company legislation.

His remarks on works and legislation were regarded today as two salient portions of the address. Another was the note of optimism he struck.

"Never since my inauguration in March, 1933," he said, "have I felt so unmistakably the atmosphere of recovery."

"Fear is vanishing," he added, "and confidence is growing on every side, renewed faith in the vast possibilities of human beings to improve their material and spiritual status through the instrumentality of Democratic government. That faith is receiving its just reward."

"And for that we can be thankful to the God who watches over America."

Answers Critics.

Early in his address last night, Mr. Roosevelt answered critics who say the administration's program is confused. Comparing the program to a large ship being built, he said:

"When one of these ships is under construction and the steel framework has been set in the keel, it is difficult for a person who does not know ships to tell how it will finally look when it is sailing the high seas."

Absent from the list of legislation the president mentioned were such measures as the Wagner Labor Relations bill, the proposed amendments to strengthen the AAA's powers, the Copeland food and drug bill and others.

But he said he could name only a few bills in the talk and asserted: "I do not want my mention of specific measures to be interpreted as lack of interest in or disapproval of many other important proposals that are pending."

"We are losing no time," he said, "in getting the government's vast work relief program under way."

National Crusade.

"This," he said, "is a great national crusade to destroy enforced idleness, which is an enemy of the human spirit generated by this depression. Our attack on these enemies must be without stint and without discrimination. No sectional, no political distinctions can be permitted."

"It must, however, be recognized that when an enterprise of this character is extended over more than 2,000 counties throughout the nation, there may be occasional instances of inefficiency, bad management or misuse of funds."

"When cases of this kind occur, there will be those, of course, who will try to tell you that the exceptional failure is characteristic of the entire endeavor. It should be remembered that in every big job there are some imperfections. There are failures in every walk of life, there are those in every industry who are guilty of unfair practices, every profession has its black sheep, but long experience in government has taught me that the exceptional instances of wrongdoing in government are probably less numerous than in almost every other line of endeavor."

"The most effective means of preventing such evils in this work relief program will be the eternal vigilance of the American people themselves."

Social Security.

The social security legislation now before Congress, he said, "is a necessary part of the future unemployment policy of the government."

Powerful Air Base Near Canadian Border Hinted

Washington, April 29 (AP).—The capital heard today that a pending proposal to establish "intermediate" stations for trans-continental operations of the new general headquarters air force is a "camouflaged" provision for a powerful defensive air base near the Canadian border.

Testimony given by Brigadier General Charles E. Kilbourne, assistant chief of staff in charge of war plans, at a secret meeting of the house military committee, shed light upon the proposal. It is part of a bill which the committee has approved designating six areas in other parts of the country for consideration in establishing air bases.

Kilbourne's testimony gave an indication why a flat proposal for a base in the Great Lakes region was eliminated from the measure. "I should be very glad to put in the bill the Great Lakes area, but I could not put it in because of the Canadian situation," said the officer's testimony, published today.

"You will notice No. 7 in my bill is camouflaged. It is called 'intermediate stations for trans-continental flights, but it means the same things.'"

16-Year Program.

Richmond, Virginia, April 29 (AP).—Roosevelt entered upon a 16-year program intended to give her arms primacy in southwestern Europe.

By HAROLD P. BRAMAN. Associated Press Foreign Staff. (Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press) London, April 29.—Leading cabinet members today began an informal study of the question of Germany's return to the construction of submarines and arranged for immediate consultations with France and Italy as new secrets of the German naval program were learned.

Reports reaching informed quarters here from Berlin said that Germany was planning the immediate expansion of her fleet with the initial construction of:

Five to eight battleships of 35,000 tons; Six battle cruisers; Twenty-five to forty large and small cruisers; Fifty to seventy-five destroyers; Forty to fifty small submarines; Several aircraft-carriers.

Program is Vague.

It was said in these quarters that Reichsmarschall Hitler's program was somewhat vague in many particulars because he had made it clear that Germany was not committing herself definitely pending an exchange of views during the scheduled Anglo-German technical naval conversations.

A source in close touch with the situation said the British cabinet was expected to order the conversations to proceed as planned.

The entire situation will be thoroughly aired at meetings today and tomorrow of the various ministers concerned with foreign affairs and defense and their observations will be communicated to France and Italy.

British naval officials will discuss the German plan with Francois Pieter, the French minister of marine, who left Paris for London today and despite denials, it is known that he will review that German proposals with British admiralty officials.

One strong group within the Conservative party urged that the government make use of the "legislative clause" of the London naval treaty (Article 21 of the treaty). Such action, it was said, would permit Great Britain to build more submarines and other small craft. This treaty automatically expires at the end of 1936, at the same time that Japan's denunciation of the Washington treaty of 1922 takes effect.

Reference to League.

Diplomatic circles here said they believed that Great Britain, France, and Italy may submit recommendations at the next meeting of the League of Nations council for methods of dealing with the German arms program, including land, sea, and air armaments, but the British are keeping silent on the subject until the cabinet decides on a policy.

The ministers will seek French and Italian opinion and it was said they hoped to have a definite policy determined before Thursday's debate on foreign affairs in the House of Commons.

Admits Orders.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER. (Associated Press Foreign Staff) (Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press) Berlin, April 29.—That orders for "a number of submarine keels" have been placed by the government with various German shipbuilding firms at Hamburg, Stettin, and possibly Danzig was haltingly admitted today by a man in a position to know.

It was an open question, however, as far as could be ascertained, whether actual construction of submarines already had begun or whether orders had gone forth to delay the beginning of their construction until the Anglo-German naval parrays now in progress come to a close.

Significantly enough, denials of submarine construction were merely given to foreign quarters which inquired, while the official government news bureau carried no denial.

There were many indications that orders for submarines had been placed with the same impetuosity with which Reichsmarschall Hitler announced Germany's return to construction and the tearing up of the arms clause of the Versailles treaty when he became the vanguard of the strictures against Germany pronounced by Premier Flaminio di Franco.

Hitler apparently is deeply hurt by Great Britain's attitude in voting with the other powers against Germany at Geneva and it has been estimated that he felt Great Britain had abandoned her role as "the honest broker."

It was indicated that the German government thought it useless to continue negotiations concerning naval strength and began her naval-building program forthwith.

In view of an emphatic assertion by the German ministry that construction of submarines had not yet begun, it is possible that either a compromise prevailed and the order for beginning U-boat building has been stayed.

Ambassador to Manchoukuo Says Red Army is Building a Huge War Machine on Border.

By GLENN BABE. (Associated Press Foreign Staff) (Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press) Tokyo, April 29.—From high quarters in the Japanese army came indications today that the military leaders of Japan are determined that the Japanese people shall continue to consider war with soviet Russia a possibility in the coming years.

They issued a series of statements designed to prevent a softening of the martial spirit and to dispel illusions that perfect peace broods over the Manchoukuan-Siberian border as the result of Russia's surrender of the Chinese Eastern Railway March 23 and Moscow's preoccupation with European war clouds.

Gen Jiro Minami, Japan's generalissimo ambassador to Manchoukuo, said at Hsinking: "The Soviet continues steadily to augment its war equipment on the borders of Manchoukuo."

"The red army in that region contains at present at least 200,000 men and more than 600 airplanes."

He said that if Russia wants to conclude an agreement with Japan for the demilitarization of the Manchoukuan frontier, it must first show its sincerity by dismantling this war machine.

"Then it will be possible to talk business," said General Minami. "If peace in this part of the world is to be maintained, it is first necessary that Russia talk with a calm, realistic view of conditions in the Far East, which would show that the maintenance of such armaments is meaningless."

"Instead, she has constructed fortifications and hundreds of small outposts along the whole frontier. Let the Russians look to the unfortified border of the United States and Canada to see how peace can be maintained."

The general declined to discuss Japan's military strength and preparation in Manchoukuo.

Roosevelt and Business Disagree on Tactics.

Washington, April 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt and organized manufacturers found themselves in agreement today over the brightness of recovery prospects but sharply divided as to what cards the New Deal should play next.

Congress, freshly bidden by the President to speed controversial measures, heard that the National Association of Manufacturers wants much of the administration's legislative program shelved for the time being.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted in his address last night that never since his inauguration had he sensed recovery "so unmistakably." A statement issued by the manufacturers' association a short time before said the country is nearer to "breaking the back of the depression" than at any time since recovery began.

But while the President urged immediate "rounding out" of the program of economic and social reconstruction, the manufacturers said this Congress should not consider measures which would be a "disturbing element" and compel a halt while industry makes necessary adjustments.

Legislation which the industrialists want postponed includes the unemployment insurance provision of the security bill, the omnibus banking bill which would strengthen Washington's control over the banking system and the bill to abolish utility holding companies. The President advocated prompt passage of these.

AAA To Aid Currant Industrialists In Ulster And Orange Counties

Marketing Agreement Proposed as the Basis of Public Hearing To Be Held in Marlborough on May 3.

THE AGREEMENT

In Both Counties Contemplated License Will Be Issued To Handlers of Currants.

The blessings of the AAA are now to be extended to the currant industry in both Ulster and Orange counties if a proposed marketing agreement which has been filed with the Department of Agriculture, Agriculture Adjustment Administration, is approved and adopted.

The agreement, in its present form, has been proposed as the basis of a public hearing for the currant industry, to be held in St. Mary's Hall, Marlborough, May 3, at 9:30 a. m., at which time interested parties will be heard.

A representative from the Department of Agriculture has been interviewing producers and handlers of currants, in the territory involved, during the past week or so.

The proposed agreement and contemplated license to be issued to handlers of currants in Ulster and Orange counties, relates to the establishment of an industry committee; expenses; minimum prices to be received by handlers for currants sold; contracts between growers and handlers; service charges and deductions; reports; books and records and other related matter.

Parties to the agreement will be the contracting handlers of currants, contracting associations of producers, contracting producers of currants and the secretary of agriculture of the United States.

The agreement provides for the establishment of an industry committee of 13 members, who shall serve until April 1 of the year following the date of their respective selections and until their successors are elected. The initial members of the industry committee, as provided in the tentative agreement, will be: Patrick Gallagher, W. J. Haviland, George Holdebrand, Russell Kohl, Walter Marrat, and Samuel Weed, whose successors shall be selected by a general election in which all contracting handlers shall be entitled to participate.

Six members, to be named, whose successors shall be selected by a general election in which all producers shall be entitled to participate.

One member to be selected by a majority vote of the 12 members heretofore provided for.

Members of the industry committee shall serve without compensation, but shall be entitled to expenses necessarily incurred in the performance of their duties.

Among reasons given as a basis for regulation of the industry, it is stated that "There now exists a severe disparity between the prices received by producers of currants and the prices of non-agricultural commodities which disparity has existed for a protracted period prior hereto, has largely destroyed the purchasing power of currants for industrial products, has broken down the orderly exchange of commodities, has seriously impaired the assets of such producers, has affected the marketing and distribution of currants with a national public interest and has burdened and obstructed the normal currents of commerce in currants."

Other Provisions.

It is also stated that for a protracted period the purchasing power of currants, with respect to articles that farmers buy, has been greatly below the purchasing power of currants in the period August, 1929-July, 1934.

For these and other reasons it is held necessary to:

(a) Authorize the establishment of minimum prices to be received by handlers.

(b) Prohibit handlers from charging producers service charges in excess of the average price charged for the same service during the previous three shipping seasons.

Governor Signs Ross Bill To Aid Insecure Farmers

Rehabilitation Corporation Will Aid Farmers Who Are Not on Relief and Will Be Financed by Federal Funds.

HAS HIGH HOPES

Lehman Expresses Hope That The Organization Will Prove of Much Assistance to Farmers.

Albany, N. Y., April 29 (AP).—Governor Herbert H. Lehman today signed the Ross bill setting up a rural rehabilitation corporation to aid farmers who are not on relief, but whose security is endangered.

Work of the corporation, which will be comprised of seven men, will be financed by the federal government out of the $4,800,000,000 emergency relief funds.

"The creation of this corporation," the governor said, "is essential to provide a vehicle in New York state for the rural rehabilitation program which is to be initiated by the federal government under the emergency relief act. I am hopeful that the activities of this corporation will prove of much assistance to our farming population."

Charles D. Osborne, a member of the state temporary emergency relief administration, will head the directors of the corporation.

Other members will be R. Dana Skinner, M. C. Bond and Fred J. Freestone, of the TERA; Lloyd R. Simons, of the State College of Agriculture; Lincoln D. Skelley, rural rehabilitation adviser of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, and A. W. Manchester, regional director of the land policy section of the AAA.

While the bill is permissive and any county may choose whether it desires the aid of the corporation, counties which decide to participate in the program will set up rehabilitation advisory committees of their own. These will include two persons nominated by the county Farm and Home Bureau Association and two by the county Pomona Grange, plus the county commissioner of public welfare.

Powers of the corporation include the right to acquire, hold and dispose of property; deal in any class of property; make loans, assist cooperative organizations and local communities for rehabilitation purposes and assist in financing charitable, educational, relief and health activities in rural sections.

Senator Ogden J. Ross, Troy Democrat who sponsored the bill in the Legislature, said during debate that the federal government has earmarked $600,000,000 of the $4,800,000,000 for rural rehabilitation purposes in the nation.

SIBLEY LIKELY TO HEAD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Washington, April 29 (AP).—Harper Sibley, a man whose interests lie in the fields of banking, mining, law and agriculture, is expected to be elected president of the chamber of commerce of the United States this week.

This 50-year-old native of Rochester, N. Y., attended Groton school and Harvard with President Roosevelt. Since 1912 he has spent much time developing model farms and ranches.

His nation-wide agricultural holdings and American and Canadian mining interests take much of his time. But they have not excluded him from leadership in religious, philanthropic and civic affairs.

Born April 5, 1885, he is a grandson of the Hiram Sibley who was an associate of Professor Morse in the development of telegraphy.

He was married in 1905 to Georgeanna Farr, daughter of J. H. P. Farr of Orange, N. J.

Dominican Exile Shot.

New York, April 29 (AP).—Serge Benomene, Dominican exile, was in a critical condition in Knickerbocker Hospital today, victim of an assassin's bullet which police believe were intended for Dr. Angel Morales, former Dominican minister to Washington. Benomene and Dr. Morales have been living in New York since they fled the Dominican republic after the revolution of 1934. Dr. Morales was a close friend of the overthrown president, Horacio Vazquez. Benomene was shot last night by a man who entered the apartment at 421 Hamilton Place where Benomene and Dr. Morales have been sharing a room. The assailant forced his way past Mrs. Carmen Nices, the landlady, and started a search of the apartment. He came upon Benomene, who had been shaving, and, without seeing his face, fired two shots into his back, then turned and fled. Benomene tried to follow but collapsed.

U. S. Joins Five Countries.

Washington, April 28 (AP).—The United States joined with five South American countries today in a joint note requesting Brazil to reconsider the refusal to participate in Cooperative efforts to end the Chaco War between Bolivia and Paraguay. Brazil's refusal to participate in the peace efforts was caused by its resentment in being overlooked in an invitation to participate in an armistice conference to be called after peace had been established.

FIRES RAGE IN NEW YORK STATE FORESTS

3 Convicts Escape
Joliet Penitentiary

Joliet, Ill., April 29 (AP)—Three convicts hammered out a window in the state penitentiary hospital today and dropped to freedom over the institution's 25-foot stone wall.

A fourth in the escape plot—Martin "Big Six" Schroeder, nicknamed for his 260 pounds—broke both legs at the ankle in the drop. Guards found him moaning in the bushes below, at 2:20 a. m. today, thereby discovering the escape.

The other three, Edward Martin, 30, George Patterson, 45, and William Kirkpatrick, 33, made good their escape in the darkness. A few hours later a man wearing a prison uniform held up a filling station on Chicago's southern edge and escaped with the contents of the cash drawer while prison guards, state highway policemen and deputy sheriffs combed Will county, scene of the break, and surrounding territory.

A money wrench and 10-foot sash cord were the tools of the escape. The four were quartered in the prison's diagnostic hospital, assigned to some reconstruction work, and were locked in the same cell. Shortly before 2 o'clock, they knocked the bars from their window, on the hospital's top gallery, climbed a fire escape near a guard-tower and let down the length of cord.

While the cord may have supported the others, cutting their fall to 15 feet, guards believed it broke when Schroeder tried to use it.

Martin was serving a sentence of one to 20 years, sentenced from Jo Daviess county for robbery in 1929. Patterson was sent to prison in 1923 for a forgery conviction from Williamson county, sentenced to serve one to 14 years.

Kirkpatrick was serving a sentence of one to 20 years for robbery, imposed in Florida county. He had served time earlier in the state prison at Lansing, Mich., and the West Virginia State Industrial School.

Supplies of old crop white potatoes were fairly liberal. The demand was rather slow, and consequently the market closed slightly weaker. New York upstate round white potatoes U. S. No. 1 in 100-lb. sacks jobbed out from 65-85 cents.

Police Radio Found
Lost Child Quickly

Kingston Police Department Broadcasting Station Went Into Operation on Sunday Morning—Adds to Efficiency of the Department.

The Kingston police department radio broadcasting station located in police headquarters in the city hall was placed in operation on Sunday. The effectiveness of the radio was shown this morning when at 10 o'clock Mrs. Manfro of 132 Tremper avenue, telephoned the police that her son, Dominick, 3 years old, was missing. A description of the missing boy was sent out on the air and 17 minutes later Radio Car No. 3, picked up the missing boy and returned him to his home, safe and sound.

The station was given a thorough test all last week, and on Sunday when it was placed in full operation it was found to work very satisfactorily. All three of the patrol cars are equipped with radio receivers and are able to pick up the station from any section of the city.

Saturday afternoon one of the cars in charge of Sergeant Simpson was sent to Newburgh to serve a warrant. The car was able to pick up the police station as far south as Esopus.

Moore Fell from Ladder
Breaking Both Elbows

Joseph, better known to his host of friends as "Kid" Moore, widely known steeplejack and ballplayer, is confined to his home, 9 Ten Broeck avenue, with both elbows broken as the result of a fall from a ladder about noon Saturday at the Ramsey piano factory on Gage street. Mr. Moore was also injured about the chest but no ribs were fractured. He was on a ladder when one of the rungs gave way and he fell about 20 feet to the ground. He was removed to his home where he is under the care of Dr. Frank A. Johnston. Mr. Moore as a steeplejack has worked on several of the tallest steeples of churches in the city, but the accident Saturday was his first serious one. In addition to his work as a steeplejack he is known as one of the best ball players in the city and was a member of the old Kingston Colonials when that club was first organized. This season he expected to play with the Schryvers in the City League.

55-Million Bond Issue
Ready for State Voters

Albany, April 29 (AP)—Stamped with the approval of the 1935 Legislature and Governor Herbert H. Lehman, a proposal for a $55,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief now is ready to be placed before the voters of New York state.

The governor signed the Killgrew bill authorizing such an expenditure Saturday. The sum, if approved by the electorate in November, will bring New York state's total expenditures for relief since 1931 to $210,000,000.

Governor Lehman also signed three bills designed to aid Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., in his drive against gangsters and racketeers. They will: Prevent admission to bail, pending appeal, of known criminals with long police records; and convicted of a serious crime; invalidate in New York city, pistol permits secured upstate by gangsters; require advance notice of an alibi defense.

EPIPHETIS OR ISSUES?

Thomas Carlyle, contemplating the ways of politics, said it was written that "man shall live not by bread alone, but mainly by catchwords." In America today we might suggest that we operate politically by wisecracks and epiphetis. Especially epiphetis! We had this fact richly illustrated in the recent exchange of amenities between Messrs. Long, Johnson and Coughlin. And look at the new crop springing up from the conflict of federal and state governments over distribution of relief funds.

A senator is described as suffering from "hallucinations of the intellect." A cabinet member is a "chinch bug" and a "Lord High Chamberlain." Another is "Prime Minister" with "royal prerogative." A subordinate cabinet officer has his middle initial expanded to "Almighty." A political group is characterized as "a queer mixture of the wet nurse brigade, frenzied finance and Communism." We have "a presidential Boston Tea Party." And so on.

Now an epiphetis is a convenient weapon or handle, and may be entertaining. But it isn't argument. It isn't logic. It may have a very distant relation to fact. What we need in public affairs is not name-calling but thought, not wisecracking but logic; not fighting over personalities but rational discussion of principles and issues.

AMERICAN AIR AROOSIES.

That "American Clipper" plane that has just made its successful pioneer flight to Hawaii and back is the most romantic thing in years of aviation. It seems equally romantic whether you look backward or forward. It reminds Americans of their most heroic seafaring era, a century ago, when the sailing vessels for which this airship is named roamed all the seas and surpassed the fleets of all other nations in their speed and beauty and the enterprise of their masters.

Can that era now be repeated in the air? Why not? We Americans are the greatest travelers in the world, and these giant passenger ships may carry us to all the continents. But they are not limited to passenger traffic. The Orient calls commercially, as it did a century ago. The Pacific may be the natural sphere of these wonderful ships. They may grow rapidly in size, power and beauty, plying to China, Japan, the Philippines and the East Indies, taking American goods and returning with the spices, silks and other Oriental products that have always stirred western imagination. In them may be realized at last that amazing prophecy in which Tennyson, three-quarters of a century ago—

"Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, Flota of the purple twilight dropping down with costly bales."

SHIPS OR HOTELS.

"Future prosperity at sea," writes Christopher Morley. "lies in ships of medium size (whether fast or slow) and a decent simplicity of fittings." He places some of the blame for the Marco Castle disaster upon the false psychology which has been built around the ocean voyage in recent years.

First came the idea of size, speed and luxury. Ships became huge floating hotels on which gaiety was to reign throughout the trip. It was considered rather bad taste for company officials or ship's officers to inject into the holiday mood any thought of danger in the way of fire drills or instruction about safety equipment. The great number of passengers carried on a luxury liner is a danger in itself because, when there is trouble of any sort, the "population of so huge a vessel is too large to control."

The Normandie of France and the Queen Mary of England will be making maiden voyages soon. They are the largest liners afloat, and they will have a period of great popularity of that sort. But their owners are likely to find, as has been true of other large ships, that they are too costly to operate profitably. Travel preferences in recent years have been turning slowly toward the smaller, one-class ships. Travelers are beginning to value again the leisure, quiet and pleasure of a real ocean voyage on a boat instead of a floating palace or hotel.

OUR FIRST AMERICANS.

When we speak of the American Indian as a dwindling race, possibly doomed to extinction, we are taking a narrow and unscientific view. We think only of the red men in this country, who number about 320,000. E. E. Gifford, a racial expert of the University of California, reminds us that there are on this continent 28,000,000 full-blooded Indians—of "Amerindians" as he calls them.

To do justice to this race, either numerically or as regards qualities and achievements, it is necessary to take a continental view. We have had some brave and talented races in the United States, but apparently none of them has ever reached such heights of culture and civilization as their redskin cousins of Mexico and Central America. The Aztecs and Mayas left architecture, writings and art works that still arouse the admiration of modern scholars, and remarkable levels of civilization seem to have been attained by less known branches of the race farther southward, especially in Panama.

Archaeologists are now busy there, as in Greece, Egypt and Asia Minor. We shall soon realize that the first Americans have left us no mean heritage. And we shall soon be observing for ourselves their ancient works and their living descendants as roads improve between the States and the Panama Canal.

That Body of Yours

BY James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

YOUR BODY NEEDS SALT.

Common salt, sodium chloride, is by far the most important and valuable salt used as or found in food. It forms 60 per cent of the salts of the blood and enters into the structure of all the tissues of the body with the single exception of the enamel of the teeth. The amount needed by the body is about one-half ounce daily, which amount is usually found in the foods we eat, that is if we eat a varied diet.

The kidneys are important organs in getting rid of wastes (poisons) from the body; salt stimulates the blood circulation in the kidneys which helps get rid of these wastes, which in turn causes thirst and drinking more fluid which stimulates the interchange of juices in the body.

Prof. Gilman Thompson in his book Practical Dietetics reminds us that salt stimulates the appetite and influences in a beneficial way the digestion of food in the stomach. It not only furnishes the chlorine for the hydrochloric acid so necessary for digestion but converts pepsinogen into active pepsin for the stomach digestive juice. In fact the absence of salt from the diet checks the production of hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

Among the other uses of salt in the body with which we are familiar is its ability to hold certain materials in solution in the blood, regulate the chemical reaction of the blood and of the various juices of the body, and preserve the tissues from disorganization and putrefaction.

Another very helpful purpose recently discovered is the effect of sodium salt upon the intestines. Research physicians found that strong salt solutions had the effect of making the intestines contract in cases where there was obstruction, thus relieving the severe pressure.

Recently Drs. H. Eitel and A. Loewer, Berlin, have experimented on animals and human beings and have found that when men and animals were deprived of a certain amount of salt the intestine was not active, thus causing constipation.

The thought then is that salt is not only of help in digestion, but lack of it can cause a lack of power or activity in the intestines.

All that is necessary for us to make sure of getting enough salt is to eat fruits, vegetables, meat and milk daily.

GREAT RICHES

by Melvin House Farnham

Chapter 49

LESLIE shook back into a convenient closet among the dust pans and mops as she heard a swish of skirts coming along the corridor. "Right in here, ma'am. He's waiting for you. I'll have him here in two minutes," Leslie heard her knight errant say.

Jane was in the cloak room... at last... at last. The boy scout led Jane turned round to see the door close behind her, heard the key turn in the lock. She rattled the door knob, pounded on the dirty panel.

"What does this mean? Who's out there?" Jane cried frantically. The key was removed. "It means," Leslie all but hissed through the roomy key hole, "that you are going to stay where you are until James makes his speech. You can kick and scream and howl if you like. No one can hear you. I'm on guard... to see that no one comes near. It won't be long. I advise you to sit down and make yourself comfortable. But you're not going to ruin James a second time. I won't let you."

"Ruin James! How ridiculous! Is that Leslie Harris? Of all the absurd melodramatic... let me out of here at once. You shrew-devil!"

Leslie leaned against the door shaking and trembling. Could anything be more undignified, more debasing than for James' ex-wife and his future wife to spend the most momentous half hour of James' life hissing insults at each other through a key hole? If James knew... if James guessed...

Abruptly Leslie began to laugh hysterically; laughed and laughed. Jane was again pounding on the door. Was threatening arrest, scandal, disgrace... Leslie did not listen. She had caught the sound of applause from above.

Then silence... a shout of laughter... more silence... more applause... a quiet... a long, long quiet. And suddenly cheers, a mounting crescendo... cheer upon cheer... on and on and on...

Leslie inserted the key in the lock, turned it quickly and ran. They were still cheering when Leslie stumbled up the stairs and to a dark and deserted corner of the wings. There she collapsed in a heap and cried and cried.

O the extreme disappointment of New Concord James and Leslie decided to be married very quietly. Only their immediate families, a few intimate friends and Leslie's youngest dancing class were invited.

The wedding ceremony took place out of doors under a tree in the Harris' back yard in the warm sunshine of an April afternoon. The tree was a gnarled old apple in full pink and white bloom. The sunshine crept softly down between the blossoms and spread a glory of golden light about the little group of friends gathered there that this man might be married to the woman he had chosen by himself and of his own free will.

To James the golden light was like a benediction. Leslie was a gift of God as truly as the sun itself. She was in white, but wore no veil and her pale blonde hair seemed to her lover to glow about her head like a halo.

When Doctor Brown, the Congregational minister, said the fitting words that made them man and wife, James drew a deep breath and waited. He wanted Leslie to turn to him, to hold out her hands, to smile up at him.

Instead she just stood there motionless, her head drooping a little, patiently waiting his pleasure. Behind with a sudden panic lest she might shrink from him, might already have repeated, might not want him as he wanted her, James forgot that anyone else was present and took her face in both his hands and lifted it up.

What he saw in her eyes must have satisfied him for he drew her into his arms and kissed her a dozen times. This seemed the signal for everyone present to burst into tears.

Even Leslie cried a little.

James, however, was far from crying. He was instead joyously, radiantly happy and showed it. Nor did Nappy, who had been invited to open the front door for the guests and who was looking on from the back porch, add to the solemnity of the occasion.

THE END

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, April 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Eli Wager of Lakehurst, N. J., were recent callers in town. They spent the winter in Sebring, Fla.

Mrs. George Dabbs of Kingston was a guest of Edgar E. Deyo and family on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lottor Krom and baby Gloria were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jensen of New Falls on Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor of Kingston were guests of his mother for the week-end.

three days a week and already quite a few have been buying.

Ira Smith, who has been spending some time with his son, Ora Smith, and family, of East Meredith, has returned to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fannie Temple.

Mrs. Kathryn Joseph, who has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. E. Clark, and family, of New York City, has returned to her home here for the summer.

Her son, Elmer, brought her up by auto. Mrs. Joseph's many friends were waiting to give her a hearty welcome.

Mrs. F. Kannevime and daughter, Miss Edna Kannevime, have also returned to their home here, after spending the winter in the city, and are warmly welcomed by their friends and neighbors.

Miss Emily H. Davis of East Orange, who has been spending Easter vacation with her sister, Mrs. Emma Davis, returned to Jersey on Friday of this week.

Slow But Sure

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 THE Puddie Muddiers were all listening to the porcupine's account of his escape from the zoo. "I am slow but sure," the porcupine said. "That's not very exciting perhaps, but it suits me to be that way. I am not sure that the keeper was very funny about keeping me. He knew that if I stayed in the zoo

"All yours... forever and ever. Darling, darling," Leslie whispered in his ear.

AND so the story of James Brewster Stimson III, as far as it can be told for the present, is ended. There is a postscript, however, for anyone who may be interested enough to read it. Miss Julia Pratt, for one, would be fearfully disappointed if it were left out. For there are still those in New Concord who say that James Stimson threw himself away when he married little Leslie Harris. This makes Miss Julia so mad she snorts.

Not long ago Miss Julia was sitting comfortably on her front porch, reading her evening paper and talking to Melissay who was inside clearing the supper table when the Stimsons went by in their automobile and stopped at the Harris cottage.

Lem Rhodes, who lives up the street "a piece" from Miss Julia, was leaning lastly against her fence talking to a visiting Topeka cousin. They were within earshot of Miss Julia but the vines screened her from sight.

"Lem, who are those mighty nice looking people who just went by? Are they natives?" inquired the cousin.

Lem answered proudly. "That's United States Congressman Stimson and his wife and children. According to the papers he's one of the best talkers in Congress. But they do say around here he's coming home to run for governor. He's got his eye on the Senate. They tell me that he's made them smart boys in Washington sit up and take notice. Well, none of us around here are surprised. We knew he had it in him from the time he was a kid."

The cousin, as Miss Julia could see, was enormously impressed. He had read about Congressman Stimson he said.

"My wife has a sister in the Pension Office," he went on. "She came from Topeka and naturally is interested in Kansas. She writes my wife that Mrs. Stimson has made good socially in Washington. She says it is most unusual for a congressman's wife to be noticed in Washington society at all."

"Oh, Leslie's all right. She's a nice little woman and of course she is bound to be popular as Mrs. Stimson, but she can't hold a candle to his first wife. There is a smart woman, daughter of old man Northrup who owned those elevators alongside the railroad and a million or so besides. It was a great pity they split up and got a divorce, for with her brains and her money and all she would have been a great help to Jim."

"How long has he been married to this one?"

"Oh, quite a while—the kids are all hers. Funny how a smart man like Jim came to pick her out. She was an old maid, too, when he married her, but the women say he was kinda sweet on her before he married his first."

"My wife is always telling me that the wives of most of the famous men make them," said the cousin, who was a meek-looking little person. "I judge you don't think this wife of Congressman Stimson made him."

"Leslie make Jim! What an ideal!" laughed Lem.

"Do you think women ever do make or break men?" persisted the cousin wistfully.

"Now," said Lem, yawning, "never expect in books. Come on down the street and I'll introduce you to Jim."

"Did you hear that, Melissay?" asked Miss Julia wistfully.

"I surely did, Miss Julia. Ain't men the bestest?" All I got to say is that I ain't nothing but a ole black nigger woman without no learning, but if I didn't know more's of the men in this here town I'd blush myself white."

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
 WASHINGTON—When the democratic caucus raised control of the house of representatives in the elections of 1930 the greatest personal award went to a ruddy-faced man from Texas by the name of Jack Garner.

"Cactus Jack," democratic leader in the days when he must have despaired of ever ascending the Speaker's dais, probably didn't know in his and his party's hour of triumph that the 11th congressional district of Pennsylvania "nominated on all tickets" in May—and elected without opposition in November, 1930—a gray-haired Irishman by the name of Patrick J. Boland.

"Pat" Boland came back to the house "without opposition" and in the 74th (present) congress—They made him whip.

The Whip "Machine" THE whip in either house or senate is what the man makes it. The notoriously elegant "Jim Ham" Lewis of Illinois, for example, is democratic whip of the senate. Aided by a fleet-footed youngster—Leslie L. Biffis, secretary to the majority—

Senator Lewis need not move from his desk to discharge his duties. In the house there are 225 democrats to look after and no secretary to the majority to assist.

"Pat" Boland has organized this "whipping" business (there's no definition in Jefferson's Manual for his title) into something akin to science.

Speaker Byrnes has entrusted him with the duty of seeing that 225 democrats are on the floor to vote on an important roll call. He has divided them into 12 sections. Over each section, divided geographically, Boland has a man responsible to him.

Once a week either in his office or in the democratic caucus room he calls his lieutenants together for a conference.

Boland Calls "Em THEN he reports either to the Speaker, the floor leader or the other member of the triumvirate, the chairman of the rules committee, what they can expect to "get away" with.

How effective the Boland system is was demonstrated when the administration considered "gagging" the house on the social security bill. Whatever anyone may say as to why the social security bill was given a clear track in the house (a week or more of debate and amendments) at least one of the reasons for clear sailing lay in the fact that Boland reported 81 of his 225 democrats would vote against any attempt to consider the bill otherwise.

Talks to parents

House Divided

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
 Mrs. X felt that her husband was very hard on their son, Sam, in money matters. Sam was in high school, and was, of course, always short of pocket money. There were dues to pay, treat dates, which required a certain outlay, and a number of other unusual extras on the purse these last years at school.

Both parents had come from families of small means, and had earned at least part of their keep before they were Sam's age. But Mrs. X wanted Sam to have an easier time than his parents, and prided herself on having a deep sympathy for and understanding of the needs of modern youth.

Mr. X, however, remained firm in spite of his wife's pleadings. The mother finally took matters into her own hands. Out of her pocket she gave Sam an extra allowance, which he was not to tell his father about.

The results were what one might expect. Not only was the breach between Sam and his father widened, but Sam's respect for both parents was decreased. He felt his mother's weakness and his father's severity. Furthermore, the lack of sympathy and unity between them broke down much of his respect for his home. Henceforth he went his own way with no regard for his parents' wishes, and spent money lavishly, knowing that he could call on his mother whenever he liked.

Disagreement between a father and a mother on such a basic question as allowances for the children is in itself bad enough, but when to it is added dishonesty on the part of one of the parents, the situation has become fatal. It would be far better for a child to think his father stingy, than to feel a breach in foundations of home.

GREAT MOTHERS

Mary Ball Washington

THE girl who was to become the mother of George Washington was something of a belle in her native colony, Virginia. Mary Ball, descended from a good English family, was called "the rose of Epping Forest" in her girlhood. Epping Forest was the name of the Ball homestead. Orphaned early, she had as her guardian George Eakridge, a wealthy Virginia planter.

At twenty-two, Mary Ball married (on March 6, 1730) Augustine Washington, then a widower with two little boys. Her first child she named George after her old family friend. Five other children were born of this marriage, four of whom survived. When Augustine Washington died, she was left with a brood of youngsters to care for. George was then only eleven. Fortunately, however, the husband had provided for them amply. His wealth consisted mostly of land, and in order to produce the requisite income, it had to be carefully managed. Mrs. Washington seems to have had plenty of practical sense. Also, she brought up her family and saw that all successfully settled in life.

George Washington was still a young boy when he became possessed of a great desire to be a midshipman. His mother had been half-hearted about this plan at all times, but finally (see the story) when his son-chest was being carried down to the wharf by a porter, she refused to let him go. He accepted her decision with good grace, and devoted himself to surveying instead. His activities in the next years often took him far away from her and greatly prepared him for the great role he was to play in American history.

Mary Ball Washington was sixty-eight when the Revolution began. Since communication was then so primitive, she often did not know for months at a time whether her son was alive or dead. Yet she maintained courage and cheer. One of her sayings was, "The mother and wives of brave men must not be known as such." The motherhood of her brave son, she thought, was her glory. At last Cornwallis surrendered in 1781 and the Revolution was won.

MARY BALL WASHINGTON

Ever mindful of his mother's anxiety for him, Washington sent off a courier at once to hear how she was. As soon as his official permission, he followed, and mother and son met again for the first time in seven years.

Mary Ball Washington lived to be over eighty, mentally keen and unfailingly cheerful. She died in 1793, the year her son was elected first President of the United States.

MEETINGS IN UNORGANIZED JEWISH COMMUNITIES

Plans for mass meetings in unorganized Jewish communities in this locality were formulated at a conference in Schenectady of the New York State Capital Region branch of the United Synagogue of America, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr. Harry Miller, president.

Dr. Miller declared that the meetings, which will be sponsored by laymen in each community, are expected to create a desire for spiritual leadership among Jewish groups where no synagogue or religious life exists. Rabbi Joel S. Goffen of Troy has been appointed chairman of the Committee on Organization and Extension, in charge of the project.

The organization also laid plans for broadcasting educational programs over local radio stations, under the auspices of the United Synagogue. Rabbi Samuel N. Sherman of Schenectady was appointed chairman of a committee to carry out the proposal. Rabbi Sherman also heads a committee on educational activities, and Rabbi Samuel Epstein of Amsterdam, is chairman of a committee on Young People's and Adult Activities.

The next meeting of the branch will take place in Schenectady, May 26, Dr. Miller announced.

Velocity of Rivers Is

Greatest at Beginning

As rivers usually have their sources on very high ground, their velocity is greatest at the beginning of their course, which is for many streams a succession of rapids and waterfalls.

The velocity of falls, which is often enormous, cannot very well be included in any estimate of velocity of rivers, although the impetus given by rapids, as well as the general inclination of the bed of the stream, has a most important influence on the rate of its current.

But the velocity of a river does not altogether depend on the slope of its bed, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Much is owing to its depth and volume; most rivers, therefore, flow with varying velocity at different seasons of the year. Furthermore, bends in the course, jutting points of rock, or other obstacles, interfere with its speed, so that the water of a river flows at different velocities at different parts of its bed; it moves slower at the bottom than at the surface and at the sides than at the middle.

There is no stream that has a regular current of 30 miles an hour or even half that. The lower Amazon flows at the rate of three miles an hour. The Mississippi, in the lower course, has a velocity of about three and a half miles an hour. The Congo has for many miles above its mouth a current of about seven miles an hour, the impetus of its great falls crowding for a great distance below them. The Nile, similarly influenced, moves for a long distance at seven miles an hour.

They say American citizens have not enough interest in public affairs; but in Washington, D. C., there are 145 candidates running for the city council.

GAS BUGGIES—You Can't Always Tell.

ENEMY'S KISS by Evelyn M. Winch

CHAPTER ONE
THE HAIRLESS SKULL

ALISON REDE, brushing her teeth in very cold water, raised her head from the basin to listen. Night, in an empty house, is always liable to produce strange and alarming sounds, but surely that had been a footstep? It must be her father at last!

Her mouth was full of pink soap flavored with arca nut, so she could not call out, but the flooding sense of sheer relief was wonderful; never had she been through such a nerve shaking experience.

For her father, usually so careful of her comfort, to change his plans by telegram at the last minute was bad enough. True he had written to her that he was leaving London and was looking for a country place, yet it was totally unlike him to ask Alison to meet him at this lonely house at eleven at night, still more so to add "if I am late, wait there for me"; for Robert Rede was the most precise and punctual of men, and he had always come to fetch her at Dover.

But if the telegram seemed odd, her arrival at this new home had been worse. The hired car which had brought her here from Warley Station was already halfway down the road before Alison had realized that the bell produced no answer. Groping her way to the back she had grasped at last that the whole place was dark and empty.

Tired, cold, very wet and rather frightened, her first instinct had been to try and find some cottage near by. But it was late; no friendly light showed anywhere along the dark road; her father's telegram had been explicit—"wait there for me"—and if she went exploring she might miss him when he arrived. At ten minutes to eleven on a pouring wet autumn night, it seemed silly to attempt to walk a matter of six miles back to the station. Soaked and shivering, she had waited for ten minutes in an open porch that gave her no protection from the driving rain. Then with the aid of her pocket torch she had managed a find a window ajar and with some difficulty got herself and her small attaché case through it into the parlor.

But thankful as she was to be under shelter, a hurried search of the house had failed to discover the main switch of the electric light.

By the pale beam of her small torch the empty house seemed strange and eerie. Waiting, expecting every moment to hear her father's car arrive, she had tried to keep her spirits up and to pretend that the whole affair was a vast joke.

To sit in time, she had unpacked her brush and sponge bag and had started to wash off some of the clinging dirt of Suez and French trains. But now, rinsing her mouth, she could afford to admit that she had been scared!

CREAK...

With the glass still in her hand, Alison stiffened. The muscles of her throat grew tight as she stood motionless, listening.

Someone was coming up the stairs outside the bathroom, but—that was not her father's brisk, short, rather jerky tread—

Slow steps, stealthy, with a marked pause between each as though the person outside was afraid of being heard.

Creak! Then a rattle and a faint, sharp squeak.

The girl started into the looking-glass above the bath, stared across her own shoulder, unable to move, paralyzed with fear.

The door was opening: then she saw.

Her mouth stretched wide to scream, as she spun round, but no sound came but a dull click as the door closed. At the same moment she flung herself bodily against the door.

There was no key; she herself had seen all the doors being hung with strings on a hook in the parlor; left standing there, as dumb, by the last woman. There was no furniture in the small tiled bathroom except a light stool and Alison, at the very least, was very slight.

She was shaking so much that the door rattled on the padded hinges against it and she felt apprehending that she would go on hitting it against that thing which was trying to force the door open.

Things, for the face which had showed for a moment in the door way had looked barely human. Skull-shaped and hairless, leaden-grey even to the lifeless eyes which had glared at her from deep hollows and the mouth which gaped at her with toothless gums, it had been like a corpse, and for a moment Alison's common sense had wavered. She did not believe in ghosts but—

Creak! That came from a distance. Was the creature going? The pressure on the door had relaxed, but the girl did not dare to yield an inch. Suppose it was waiting for her to do that? She wanted to scream yet felt that if she did the house as though the thing outside was creeping away.

The sharp edge of the door-panel was cutting into her knee and the tense interval of silence played on her nerves. At one moment it seemed as though something were moving away along the passage, at the next she fancied that she could hear breathing just outside which changed a moment after to the scuffling of mice.

Dared she open the door, make a bolt for the safety of the open road? But the thought of that corpse-like face waiting for her, perhaps, at a dark turn of the passage daunted her courage, usually firm, and she shifted her weight to the other foot as she pressed hard against the door. "Don't be a coward!" she scolded herself sternly. "There aren't any ghosts! It was a man, must have been a man. Probably some poor wretch of a tramp or something, looking for shelter from the rain and scared blue at finding you here in an empty house! Take that stool and go on down and telephone to the police! Go on!"

But it was much easier to scold herself than to force her panic-stricken limbs to act. Logical argument, generally a potent weapon which thing outside would know that she was frightened, might take heart.... She glanced at the window. It was shut and an old-fashioned Venetian blind with wooden slats hung over the curtainless pane. Below the window was a drip of twelve feet or more on to the macadamized road, for she had looked out, hoping to see the lights of her father's car, before she started to wash. But there was no car on the wall and Alison Rede, eighteen and a half, straight from school and fit, would have risked a scratchable face the try.

What kept her cowering against the door was not a fear of breaking her neck on the road but the thought that if she turned her back to get out of the window she would be necessarily helpless if the door should open; at the mercy of those two lean, greyish-yellow claws if they came clanking at her from behind!

EVEN the bare thought made Alison's scalp tingle and little cold shivers ran down her spine. For when Alison had added the final touch of horror—she on the door, the other creeping forward—hands without any nails—"I can't stand here all night!" she thought desperately. "Oh, if only father's door!"

But though she strained her ears to catch the sound of a car coming along the road, there was nothing but a far-off tinkling of brass bells and a faint creak—creak—creak—the Alison need not boast with good effect, failed her. Another faint, more distant creak made her heart beat and she shifted her weight to the other foot, as she pressed hard against the door. A tramp, she told herself grimly, would not try to force his way in!

Then suddenly a new wave of sick horror caught her just below the breastbone. The light inside the bathroom was fading! Her electric torch, lying on the glass shelf over the bath, had turned yellow—the battery was giving out!

There are moments when the human mind works at amazing speed. Alison, in the moment while the orange-glowing light faded the torch dimmed from yellow to red, thought with the swiftness of light, while one part of her mind argued, surely, that she was after all inside the bathroom, even in the dark, then in the passage beyond, another part of her brain knew with absolute certainty that she could not do it.

Secure to choose a mad dash through the brown, back through the parlor window to the open road, while the last part of consciousness suggested, then to face what might be hours and what was a lifetime in the pitch dark, holding the door!

She kept her eyes against the panel and leaned her back, reaching for the latch.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, April 27—After enjoying a very delightful Easter vacation Mrs. West and the West Shokan school children will resume their duties Monday morning. The date set for the next "Junior Town," the citizens' club meeting has been set for Friday, May 10. The school hopes to observe Arbor Day on that date and to hold an out of door meeting. The last meeting of the club is reported as very interesting. An election of officers for the last quarter was held. The names of Catherine Wilson, Harry North and Arthur Smith were recorded for the two weeks previous. The Town Spelling Bee contest will be held at the local school Friday afternoon of next week, May 3. Alice Hendricksen, local champion, will represent the West Shokan school, she having attained highest rating in the school contest. The winner of the town will represent his or her town at the county contest to be held at Kingston High School on June 24. Two years ago Cornelia Davis, now attending Kingston High School, represented the town of Olive in the county contest, where she won second honors.

William Beesmer and Michael Hughes of Broadhead are hauling spring-dressed wood from their upland lot.

The baseball season is on and the Olive Bridge club has taken the field for practice. Their team spirit is keen but the treasury is in need of funds for new equipment. In order to bring this about their energetic player manager, Lester Lawrence, is planning to put on "The Olive Minstrels" which will be presented to the public at Olive Bridge, O. O. F. Hall on Friday evening, May 3. The success of the party seems assured as Charles Gerwin, popular Department of Water Supply employee and musical entertainer, with male chorus, are cooperating loyally. Lovers of the grand old American game and the public generally are most cordially requested to show their colors and attend, which will in turn be heartily appreciated by every member of the Olive Bridge team.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coodon of Plainville have taken spring possession of their attractive bungalow property on the High Point cross road, above the Watson Hollow Inn. Workmen are building road and cleaning up generally on William Colange's property. On Wednesday and Thursday a grass fire from burning brush kept them pretty busy for a time as reported.

J. Gaylord Ayers of Broadhead is quitting the dairy business and is reported having sold his fine young cows to a new corner farm family in Olive Bridge.

Mrs. Edward West of Allaben was a caller about town on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. West is getting around again after a siege of intestinal flu for several days.

John Jordan of West Shokan heights was Kingston business caller on Thursday.

Mrs. James Burgher of Maple Dell, with Mrs. Groceries Beardsley and son, Julius, are spending the week on a motor trip out along the border tier section.

Harriette W. Gridley, tenth year principal of the Ashokan school, was a caller in the southwestern Olive section Monday.

Otis Barringer of Samsonville heights, who has been ill for some time, is reported on the mend but still partly weak and wan.

The town of Olive was prominent.

With Byrd At The South Pole

No. 3 My Thoughts on a Great Adventure

ON BOARD THE BYRD FLAG-SHIP, JACOB RUPPERT (via Mackay Radio)—And now we are at Balboa, in Uncle Sam's Canal Zone—practically home. The Byrd Expedition will soon be behind me. And what I've been through—mentally, spiritually, physically!

Already that 14 months of icy isolation in the world's coldest, most dangerous and most disagreeable health resort seems a part of the far distant past. It has done me a world of good in every way—broadened my mind, made me more tolerant, made me face dangers without fear, put 10 pounds of solid muscle on my body and given me a marvelous appreciation of hot water, soap and a good scrubbing brush. The long, tiring labor of establishing camp, the dreary black and gray of the endless winter night and finally spring bringing the sunshine and with it a whirlpool of activities, tractor trips, plane flights and our blessed ships once again. I look back on all this and it seems like a strange dream I must have had. Those months of isolation, however, have left an impression that can never be dulled.

Just a few months after leaving college I joined the Expedition and became an insignificant part of a great adventure. For weeks I wandered around like a lost soul trying to find myself, trying to adjust myself and my viewpoints to an entirely new set of conditions. Finally, through the assistance of Commander Noville, my boss, and other Expedition officers, my program was laid out and has been followed without change. Today I know more about automotive equipment and the fuel and lubricants for it than I ever dreamed I'd know. After settling into my routine of work and all through the winter night, I had a chance to study my fellows under a microscope—and study myself and my reactions under conditions different from any I had ever known or dreamed I would know.

I look in my diary and read over the entries made early last year. Now they seem inadequate and grossly unfair. Strange to say, I wasn't homesick. My days were full of heart-breaking work and astonishing hazards and experiences but nevertheless profitable. In the evenings I read good books, wrote up my diary or went to the movies. That amazing thing, the Ross Ice Barrier, interested me, took possession of me. I craved a solution of its mystery, what it is, where it came from. My clearest memories are those of the hours spent alone on the ice away from the camp looking out over the unbroken expanse of ice covering the Ross Sea in the mysterious gray of the winter night.

During the long months of darkness naturally there was some discontent among us. Let the work slacken up a little, let the men loaf a while or assign them to unnecessary jobs and immediately unhappiness and irritability set in. The answer to that problem seemed to be work, work and more work. The men were super-sensitive. They felt they were making a sacrifice. After all, cutting one's self off from civilization, home, friends, comforts is a sacrifice. Talking seemed to be the sole relief. We discussed every subject under the sun, scientific or humorous, vulgar or spiritual. The men with the best sense of humor, the least petty and critical attitude and the greatest control over themselves finally emerged as the outstanding characters and gained the respect of their associates. You learn men's characters when you are cooped up with them and can't get away. Most of the men were found to have annoying, petty and unadmirable attitudes at times.

It was wonderful to have radio contact with the outside world, to hear from friends and relatives, to read the daily radio press items. Our immediate interests were down there on the ice but we know we would eventually come back to the whirl of civilization and that other things would become our primary interests. Things got so monotonous at times that it was a pleasure to visit the cow barn down under the snow. At least the odors there were totally different from those of this or any other conventional polar expedition. Those barnyard smells, fairly reeked of rural civilization in the springtime and the gentle, sad-eyed cows offered a soothing contrast to the howling winds and hard conditions under which we were living.

I shall never forget the amusement, pity and dramatic interest I felt in watching the penguins, the mother seals and their pups, the whales and the petrels. Seeing how perfectly at home they were in their icy surroundings I realized how out of place we were, how insignificant and helpless. But we were there for a definite purpose—to seek knowledge. There is a feeling of satisfaction among all of us in knowing that we have taken part in an adventure seldom tried before and that we have accomplished things of really tremendous value to science. There can be no doubt of that. The public at home may have lost interest in us and may wonder what value our expedition has had. But the scientific world knows that we have done a grand job under great disadvantages and with results that will be of benefit to all of mankind. And that's something, isn't it? So long.

New Engine Baptism At Schenectady Works

Schenectady, N. Y., April 29 (AP)—With Governor Herbert H. Lehman and other state and national officials scheduled to take part in the ceremony, the "world's fastest engine" will be christened tomorrow at the Schenectady plant of the American Locomotive Company.

The new, stream-lined engine, rated by William C. Dickerman, president of the company, as "undoubtedly the fastest engine in the world," will haul a speed train between Chicago and the Twin Cities on the lines of the Milwaukee railroad.

"This engine will be able to do 120 miles an hour and more it called upon to do it," Dickerman said. In making the trip between Chicago and the Twin Cities, the train will cover the 410 miles in 390 minutes, maintaining an average running speed of 66 miles an hour. The locomotive will carry sufficient fuel and water to last the entire trip. The train will be called the Hiawatha.

Use Inexpensive Cuts of Meat To Help the Economy Budget

Department of Agriculture Free Booklet Tells How to Select and Cook Low-Priced Cuts

By PETER G. TEN EYCK

Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets
Albany, New York

IT IS an important matter to New York State food consumers in these days of necessary careful budgeting to know that the less expensive cuts of meat cost less per pound of lean, edible meat, than the so-called "fancy" cuts. The chemical change. As a direct result, this material and the fat and tallow are liquified forming the most excellent flavors and very delicious gravies.

A most important secret of securing excellent flavor is to select cheaper cuts constitute seventy-four per cent of the carcass of beef.

By moist heat, covered kettle cooking such as braising, stewing, simmering, cooking with a very minimum of water—never boiling—they can be made just as delicious, highly flavored, appetizing and nutritious as the more expensive cuts.

Cooking Suggestions

In order to give the less expensive cuts the tender quality and fine flavor of the more expensive meats, first—seal the surface with hot lard. This forms a crust which holds the juices in. Second—cooking should be done with moist heat at a low temperature in a covered kettle because of the thicker meat fibre and tough connecting tissues found in these cuts. Simmering meat for a long time softens the connective tissue by a low price cuts of meat from a high grade carcass. This means a carcass that is young and particularly one that has a thick covering of tallow or suet over the meat. In such a carcass the individual fibres of meat are surrounded by a film of suet or tallow. This mixture of meat and suet is called marbling. It gives the meat a splendid flavor. Some of the most deliciously flavored meats are cooked with milk; for instance pork chops baked in milk, ham in scalloped potatoes, scalloped liver and potatoes and many other combinations with milk and other dairy products.

A limited number of copies of a mimeographed pamphlet on cooking economical cuts of meat and recipes of milk and meat may be obtained by dropping a postal card to the Consumers Information Service, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Peter G. Ten Eyck, Commissioner, Albany, N. Y.

Vanderbilt Secret Testimony Revealed

New York, April 29 (AP).—Secret testimony involving charges of misconduct which figured in Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's unsuccessful court fight to obtain custody of her daughter, Gloria, was published today, along with Mrs. Vanderbilt's denial.

The Daily News says an accusation that Mrs. Vanderbilt and her former fiancé, Prince Hohenlohe, were in a bedroom of a Biarritz villa was based on conflicting testimony given by her mother, Mrs. Laura K. Morgan, and by Emma Kelsch, former nurse of the Vanderbilt child.

The News also prints a transcript of Mrs. Vanderbilt's testimony denying any impropriety with the prince and defending her character against stories by dismissed Vanderbilt servants. The prince's denial also was published.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has appealed the decision rendered last fall by Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew making Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney Gloria's custodian and allowing Mrs. Vanderbilt to have her child only on week-ends.

Mrs. Morgan told Justice Carew the News said, that in 1928 at a Biarritz villa called Alice Copea she saw Prince Hohenlohe in Mrs. Vanderbilt's bedroom when the door was left slightly ajar. She said she summoned Nurse Kelsch to the bedroom door.

Mrs. Kelsch, however, testified the episode occurred in 1927 at the Villa Orinda and not at Alice Copea.

When Mrs. Vanderbilt took the stand her counsel, Nathan Burkan, asked her if any such thing happened.

"It certainly did not," Mrs. Vanderbilt said.

Prince Hohenlohe testified Mrs. Vanderbilt's mother, Mrs. Morgan, was "hostile" toward him and objected to his marrying Mrs. Vanderbilt on the ground he "had no fortune to speak of."

No governmental regulation as yet has been found that is a satisfactory substitute for competition. Competition is, indeed, as has been said, "the life of trade."

MODES OF THE MOMENT

With suits so favored, blouses demand featured role.
Liana Merwin

With suits and separate skirts so important in fashions this season, blouse modes receive greatest attention as an accessory requirement, with necklines and sleeves displaying interestingly new style points.

Filled necklines, shirtmaker effects, puffed sleeves and bloused fullness are features that attract particular attention—also the effective use of color contrast in trimmings.

White blouses lead in favor but such shades as navy, brown, chambray, yellow, aqua, violet, dusty pink, powder blue, light and bottle greens, and wine reds offer a smart color range.

The blouse sketched at top, above is fashioned of polka dot organdie in navy blue with red dots. The self-suit is edged in navy blue. The short sleeves are puffed and the tie belt is of self-material. This model is also very attractive in pastel backgrounds with contrasting dots.

In the circle is shown a new blouse of corn yellow organdie with its high Princess Anne neckline and front fullness produced by many rows of self-pleated ruffles. A tiny, tailored bow trims the front, at throat and the abbreviated sleeves are puffed and cuffed.

It keeps your hair nicely in place and yet you are dressed for any occasion. The purse repeats the type of design used in the beret—and it's a bag that you'll have use of on many occasions.

TAKE ANOTHER SLICE

MILLERS ASK PEOPLE

Buffalo, N. Y., April 23 (AP).—Accept another slice of bread as they did back in 1900—that's one way to put the farmers back on their feet.

The suggestion was advanced by Buffalo flour millers who went into a huddle with a batch of figures and discovered that if the eating habits of 1900 could be brought back consumption of wheat would jump 122,000,000 bushels or 7,320,000,000 loaves of bread.

The millers, who in recent years have been grinding more wheat than those of any other city found that wheat consumption in the United States has dropped to an all time low. The average person now consumes 155 pounds of wheat annually, 60 pounds less than mother and dad ate when they were young.

Sales of the first 17 flour-mills and mail-order companies to report for March or for the 4-week period in that month were $151,057,125, a gain of 5.75 per cent over sales of $142,822,863 for the same companies in the like weeks of 1934.

Scalloped Eggs

Delicious and nutritious. A favorite for the entire family:

Make a white sauce of 2 cups milk, 1/4 cup oil, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup salt, and 1/2 cup pepper. Then add one tablespoon each of chopped parsley, onion, celery, corn, and green pepper and one cup of mushrooms which have been sliced 5 minutes in one tablespoon butter. Pour this mixture over eight hard-boiled eggs and place in a buttered baking dish. Cover with buttered cracker or bread crumbs. Bake until thoroughly heated and brown on top.

Broadway: "Life Begins at 40." The thousands who have read Walter P. Pitkin's book of the same name will discover, on viewing this film, that the only thing the motion picture people used in producing this film was the title. It's a good thing, because Mr. Pitkin's wordy optimism wouldn't have made good comedy. The movie version, however, couldn't have been better chosen, because it is one of the funniest pictures Will Rogers has ever starred in. It's an easy going provincial type of show, the kind Mr. Rogers finds so well adapted to his abilities, and in the role of a newspaper editor, Mr. Rogers settles political arguments, expands on the troubles bounding human society, sings, and even helps a young couple find happiness. And through it all is found a constant stream of comedy, so well done and original that it's sure to do with favor from any audience. One episode, when Mr. Rogers paints an expressive picture of a comedy highlight of the picture. A fine supporting cast includes Dick Cromwell, Rochelle Hudson, George Barbier and June Darwell.

Orpheum: "The Good Fairy." An orphan girl gets a job as usherette in a European theatre, and from that point on she rises in the world and helps various people find success and happiness. A wealthy fan falls in love with her and through him she helps the man she loves find wealth and fame. The show is brilliantly acted and the comedy is exceptional. Margaret Sullivan has her best movie role in this show and Herbert Marshall also in the cast. In the Sierra Mountains, with magnificent scenery and a novel plot, this study of wild animal life is as dramatic and gripping as any movie with a human cast of players. A girl rescues a baby puma and a fawn from pursuing hunters. She raises them and despite the fact that the two animals are bitter enemies, they grow up trusting each other. It is a story of this devotion as it carries on through their growing years that is so beautifully brought to the screen, and it causes wonder as to the sportsmanship of men who track down these creatures with rifles. In Parker and Russel Hardie are also in the cast.

Hollywood's Brawl, Supposedly a Joke, Taken Too Seriously

Hollywood, Calif., April 29 (AP)—Hollywood went in for brawls in a big way over the week-end.

The result: The Countess Dorothy Di Frasso's home damaged by a gang of gentlemen from Cauliflower Alley, who, invited to a party arranged for the hit-and-take-profession, forgot their roles as guests and engaged in a free-for-all.

A man identified by sheriff's deputies Robert Jurgenson and Richard Summers as Grant Withers, one-time leading man for Corinne Griffith and ex-husband of Loretta Young, nursing a blackened eye.

Joe Benjamin, ex-husband of Marlon Nixon, the screen star, and once a lightweight boxer, was reported by Withers, the officers said, to have been his assailant. Benjamin recently took a swing at Fred Perry, the English tennis star.

A man named Joe Egli also suffered a black eye. At the home of Joseph Egli, husband of Alberta Vaughn and an assistant casting director, it was said "Joe is not home."

The male of the countess' home was separate from the three-cornered battle which involved those identified as Withers, Benjamin and Egli. Just what started the free-for-all at the countess' home was not made public.

"I invited Gus Wilson, the fight trainer, and Terry Hunt to bring some fighters to the party and it was all arranged in advance that they were to stage a brawl in the hall when they arrived," the countess later explained.

Although the countess did not name the pugilists, the results to her home were more than she bargained for even if it was make believe. The pugilists tore the furniture down, knocked each other down stair cases along with pieces of brick-and-mortar and finally wound up swinging on the lawn.

"It was only a gag," insisted the countess today, but her guests, including film celebrities, writers and some dignitaries were wondering today how they managed to escape flying fists.

Later, at Fountain avenue and La Cienega Boulevard, the men identified as Withers, Egli and Benjamin engaged in their free-for-all.

The motive—if there was any—for the second fight on Hollywood's program was not known. But Jurgenson and Summers reported they took the man identified as Withers home and put him to bed.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — They're going down to the sea in ships again. The movie boating season is on, and the film colony's sailors are getting ready.

John Barrymore, with his lengthy cruises in his yacht "Infanta," trips on which he has taken his wife and children, may be called the leading boatman, but every studio harbors a crew of fans for the briny.

Frank Morgan gave up his boat this year, and so has Richard Barthelmess. Morgan thought keeping up a yacht and giving parties on it was too much of a strain on the budget—he figured it cost him about $10,000 one year—while he was building a new home. Barthelmess, one of the town's confirmed sailors during most of his Hollywood career, gave it up because he wanted to do some world traveling. But he sold it to Warren William, who used to have a boat back east and was suffering severely from nautical nostalgia—especially when he heard James Cagney and Allen Jenkins talking yacht talk. So the Barthelmess ship still cruises.

'DeMille's Seaward' The "Seaward," a 106-foot Gloucester schooner with space for nine passengers and a crew of eight, is one of Cecil B. DeMille's prized possessions. He has taken it on cruises along the Mexican coast, but even when he is working it serves a purpose. The director will go aboard alone and work on preparations for his pictures for days at a time. "DeMille discovery," it seems fitting that his 40-foot boat, the "Wanderlure," is almost a copy of the director's schooner. Wilcoxon still talks about an exploration cruise to the South Seas in search of five islands shown on an old sea map he owns.

Just A Roper Will Rogers likes polo, horses, and roping, but will have nothing to do with shooting. His pal Fred Stone is quite a hunter and marksman, and Stone was called into service when Will's young son wanted to learn to shoot. "Come on, Will, you try a few," urged Fred. "Now," said Rogers, "I'll just watch. I never handled a gun in my life."

Repair Food Store Rooms

The supply of fruits and vegetables of all kinds which many home owners store in the fall in anticipation of winter needs usually becomes exhausted in the spring.

When not consumed they often deteriorate rapidly during warm weather. Many decay to a certain extent during the winter when stored in storage bins, especially when the storage room is not well insulated to keep out excessive cold, heat or dampness.

When the storage room with its numerous bins, shelves, and other receptacles is comparatively empty, the home owner has an excellent opportunity to give it a thorough spring cleaning and so condition it that he may have proper storage for new supplies as they are canned, preserved or stored. Decayed fruits and vegetables and all rubbish should be removed and the storage room scrubbed and ventilated to eliminate odors. Then shelves and bins may be repaired and additional ones installed if needed.

If the storage room is in one corner of the basement or adjoins a basement wall, it is possible that masonry needs repairing and damp-proofing. A new floor of wood or other suitable material laid over the basement floor with an air space in between the two will help keep the room dry. Then insulating the walls and installing a ceiling will assist in maintaining a uniform cool temperature throughout the year.

A small window protected against the direct rays of the sun is desirable for ventilation. Artificial light, of course, should be installed for quick use at all times.

After the room has been thoroughly cleaned, ventilated, dried out and repaired a fresh coat of paint will brighten it up and assist in making it more sanitary and easily cleaned.

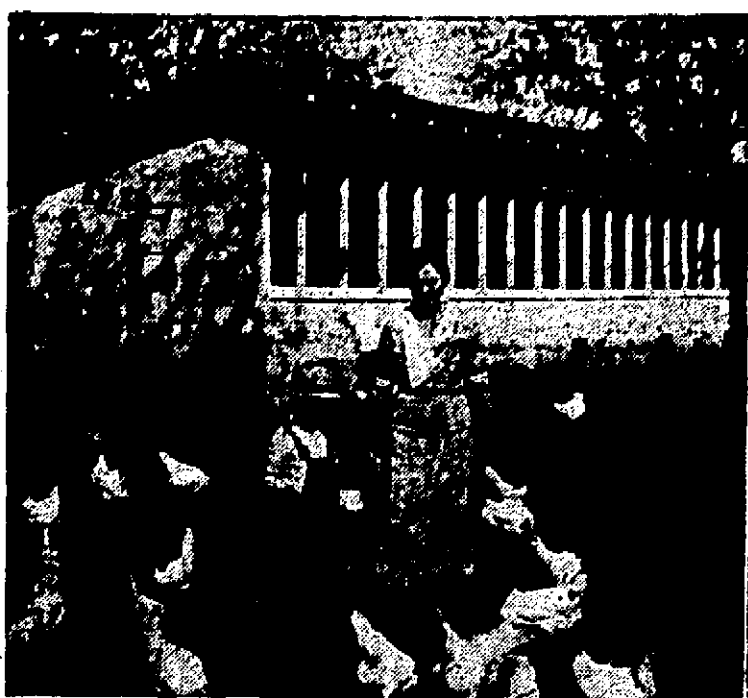

Fruit, vegetable, and other types of storage rooms may be conditioned and installed through funds obtained from an approved financial institution under the easy payment modernization credit plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

PACIFIC COAST BANK MAKING HOUSE LOANS

Portland, Ore.—The first National Bank of Portland, Ore., with resources of $60,821,000 and one of the largest banks in the Pacific northwest, began writing mortgages under the insured mortgage plan of the National Housing Act on April 1, 1935, the Federal Housing Administration is advised.

The bank has 16 branches throughout the state of Oregon. All other large banks in the state are expected to follow this action, according to the state director for Oregon.

The First National Bank of Portland is the oldest national bank west of the Rocky Mountains.

Improvements in housing for the stock mean profit to the farmer. The snug, weather-proof poultry house pictured above will keep egg production at its height the year round. The well-equipped dairy barn proves its value in its effect on the quality of milk produced.

Lumber Cut As Required

The home owner interested in modernizing his home or building a new one is now able to obtain almost any kind of lumber standardized as to width, thickness, and length, as well as material for interior woodwork having distinct individuality in color, texture, grain, pattern and design.

Beautiful and distinctive interior woodwork to meet individual requirements and tastes is possible because of the natural variations that occur in tree growth. There is considerable variation in the color effects and growth characteristics of have a very open texture, while others are very fine textured. Others different kind of woods. Some woods have no pores at all. Marked variations are often visible as a result of a difference in the appearance of the spring-wood and summer-wood growth in each annual ring of growth as shown by the width of the annual rings make for individuality.

The various methods of cutting logs also account for charming and distinctive woodwork. Veneers may be cut by the rotary process, in which the knife cuts the log in long thin ribbons of practically any desired width or thickness. This kind of veneer usually displays grain and textural variations in large patterns. In other cases veneers are made by slicing a log with a large knife or sawing it with a large, thin saw. These methods usually produce veneers having beautiful but subdued patterns of growth. The angle of the cut brings out very definite growth variations.

When boards are sawed from a log they are plain-sawn or a tangent to the circumference or quarter-sawn so that the saw cut approximates the radius of the log. This latter method produces different grain effects, such as the beautiful silver flecks noted in quarter-sawn white oak and the narrow stripes in edge-grain yellow pine and Douglas fir.

Then, of course, there are the beautiful variations in textural appearance which occur as a result of twisted or wavy growth in wood, such as is noted in bird's-eye maple and curly birch.

Other beautiful effects are obtainable by different surface treatments.

of the wood as a result of variations in hardness between summer-wood and spring-wood growth, such as may be noted in sugi cypress, sand-blasted fir and redwood, and chemically treated oak beams.

Among the beautiful natural variations in tree growth are those which occur in knotty pine and antique chestnut.

With all the natural variations in different kinds of woods, the expert cabinetmaker obtains additional varieties in interior woodwork through different color combinations, such as using walnut and maple together.

Then the cabinetmaker often matches pieces for grain and texture to obtain ribbon designs, diamond effects, crotchwood variations, and the like. Wood inlays of various patterns are sometimes used.

WALL PAPER USEFUL FOR NEW PANELS

A new use has been found for the many new and artistically designed wall papers now on the market.

In rooms where a paneled effect is produced by wood trim, applied to break up large expanses of plain wall space, home owners are buying wall paper in quantities sufficient to fill one or more of these paneled spaces.

A variation of this idea is used where a room is paneled in a flat color and some one point, such as a closed arch or sealed doorway, requires special accentuation. Careful selection of a strong harmonizing design has been found to be effective, especially when the proper table or other piece of furniture is placed in correct relation to it.

Wall paper can be purchased and hung with money obtained from any approved lending institution under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

MODERNIZATION INCREASES RENTAL

Tulsa, Okla.—Modernization of a rental property have materially increased its rental value to its owner.

A woman whose name is on file at the Tulsa better-housing office repaired and modernized a house she owned, being inspired by the better-housing program. Previous to modernization she had received $10 a month rent. Now she is getting $25 a month for the property and was recently offered $35 a month.

HOUSING HINTS

TIPS ON HOW AND WHAT TO IMPROVE Shower Comfort

Probably nothing rejuvenates the tired business man or worker or affords more pleasure and enjoyment to the children on a hot, sultry day than a good shower bath. Showers may be installed under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Rewire For Safety

The insulation on electric wires laid under rugs receives considerable wear, and may break and result in a severe and dangerous fire. Such a danger can be largely eliminated by rewiring the home to provide for a sufficient number of outlets for all lighting and power accessories, including lamps, radio, toaster, and other appliances.

Paint For Light

It is good practice to apply a white or very light-colored finish in painting light shafts, inside courts, ventilated skylights, and other walls which enclose areas within or between buildings and which contain openings intended to admit sunlight or daylight. This will make possible a maximum of light reflection to the interior. A dark red light shaft, for example, will only reflect about 15 to 20 per cent of the light that enters it, while a reflection value as high as 80 per cent may be obtained in a shaft painted with a white or light-colored paint.

New Building Tops Repairs During March

Residential Projects Soar, Labor Bureau Reports.

Washington, D. C.—New residential construction took the lead over modernization during March for the first time since the Federal Housing Administration began to function, while building activity in general reached the highest figure for March within the past four years, the administration has been informed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor.

Reports from 770 cities to the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that permits for new residential construction in March totaled $20,350,706, while modernization work, exclusive of equipment installations, totaled $17,786,448.

Residential construction gained 103.2 per cent last month over the preceding month and 130.9 per cent over the same month last year. Modernization work gained 40.2 per cent over the preceding month and 48.9 per cent over the same month last year.

Building Under Way

This is taken as conclusive evidence by the Administration that new residential construction under the better-housing program is getting well under way, as the increases in building activity for the past several months have depended largely on modernization alone.

South Atlantic states reported the amazing increase in new residential construction over the same month last year of 563.1 per cent. Atlanta, Ga., led with permits totaling $2,156,877, against $3,075 for March, 1934.

All other sections of the country showed gains in residential construction over the same month last year in the following percentages: New England, 29.2; Middle Atlantic, 129.8; East North Central, 133.4; West North Central, 75.6; East South Central, 269.1; West South Central, 48; Mountain, 198.5; Pacific, 63.7.

Other Cities

In addition to Atlanta, five cities went over the half million mark last month in the residential-construction field: New York, $1,424,300, against $293,250 for the same month last year; Washington, $883,410, against $298,775; Los Angeles, $882,813, against $515,543; Detroit, $536,080, against $165,800; Philadelphia, $508,000, against $387,900.

Every section of the country also showed a gain over the same month last year in modernization work, exclusive of equipment installations.

The percentages follow: New England, 9.3; Middle Atlantic, 44.2; East North Central, 75.6; West North Central, 61.4; South Atlantic, 89.5; East South Central, 43.7; West South Central, 47.9; Mountain, 34.4; Pacific, 36.5.

New York city was far in the lead in modernization work, including equipment, with $4,036,202; Los Angeles was second with $942,791, while Columbus, Ohio, leaped into third place with the surprising volume of $731,201. Washington, D. C., continued the tremendously accelerated pace of the past several months with $617,765.

All Employed

Fort Smith, Ark.—There is not one carpenter or painter remaining on relief rolls here, according to a report by the Associate Director for the State better-housing organization.

This is the first time this condition has existed in many months, according to the Director. A better-housing exhibit is being held in the heart of the business district, sponsored by building supply dealers, with a generous display of materials and fixtures. Widespread public interest is reported.

Housing Book Finds Favor Over Nation

A new book dealing with the modernization of existing homes has just been issued by the Southern Pine Association, New Orleans, La., according to advices received by the Federal Housing Administration.

The association has announced it will furnish a sample copy of the publication free upon request to home owners, or it can be obtained locally from lumber dealers.

The publication, entitled "Suggestions for Remodeling, Building, Renewing and Modernizing," contains 44 pages of illustrations and details of construction. Built-in features are stressed. It also advises owners how they may obtain financial assistance through loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration. The section on modernizing exteriors shows examples of remodeling one- and two-story houses, converting single and double porches, adding wings and rooms, converting a one-story house into a story and a half, and other details. The section on interiors gives valuable and practical information on color decorations, attics, kitchens, libraries, corridors, sleeping porches, nurseries, and living, dining, bed, and breakfast rooms. The third section deals with details of book shelves, walls and ceilings, fences, gates, doors, linen closets and new gadgets.

Removing Paint From Glass.
To remove paint or enamel from glass, rub the surface vigorously with a cloth saturated with turpentine, or scrape with a safety razor blade.

The farmhouse pictured above was one of the many homes which have suffered from lack of normal repairs and upkeep. It's hard to believe the home at right is the same old house. The owner took advantage of Modernization Credit to restore the value, appearance, and usefulness of his property.

Lumber Cut As Required

The home owner interested in modernizing his home or building a new one is now able to obtain almost any kind of lumber standardized as to width, thickness, and length, as well as material for interior woodwork having distinct individuality in color, texture, grain, pattern, and design.

Beautiful and distinctive interior woodwork to meet individual requirements and tastes is possible because of the natural variations that occur in tree growth. There is considerable variation in the color, texture, and growth characteristics of different kinds of woods. Some woods have a very open texture, while others are very fine textured. Others have no pores at all. Marked variations are often visible as a result of a difference in the appearance of the spring-wood and summer-wood growth in each annual ring of growth. Even differences in the rate of growth as shown by the width of the annual rings make for individuality.

The various methods of cutting logs also account for charming and distinctive woodwork. Veneers may be cut by the rotary process, in which the knife cuts the log in long thin ribbons of practically any desired width or thickness. This kind of veneer usually displays grain and texture variations in large patterns. In other cases veneers are made by slicing a log with a large knife or sawing it with a large, thin saw. These methods usually produce veneers having beautiful but subdued patterns of growth. The angle of the cut brings out very definite growth variations.

When boards are sawed from a log they are plain-sawn on a tangent to the circumference or quarter-sawn so that the saw cut approximates the radius of the log. This latter method produces different grain effects, such as the beautiful silver flecks noted in quarter-sawn white oak, and the narrow stripes in edge-grain yellow pine and Douglas fir.

Then, of course, there are the beautiful variations in textural appearance which occur as a result of twisted or wavy growth in wood, such as is noted in bird's-eye maple and curly birch.

Other beautiful effects are obtainable by different surface treatments of the wood as a result of variations in hardness between summer-wood and spring-wood growth, such as may be noted in sugi cypress, sand-blasted fir and redwood, and chemically treated oak beams.

Among the beautiful natural variations in tree growth are those which occur in knotty pine and antique chestnut.

With all the natural variations in different kind of woods, the expert cabinetmaker obtains additional varieties in interior woodwork through different color combinations, such as using walnut and maple together. Then the cabinetmaker often matches pieces for grain and texture to obtain ribbon designs, diamond effects, crotchwood variations, and the like. Wood inlays of various patterns are sometimes used.

Because of the numerous variations and the differences in price between the many kinds of wood, any home owner may obtain interior woodwork to meet his individual requirements and have effects most pleasing to him. Many of the repairs and improvements he would like to make using wood may be financed by modernization credit available through private financial institutions approved by and cooperating with the Federal Housing Administration, which is insuring such loans under the National Housing Act.

Pledge $15 Per Capita.
Rome, Ga.—Indications here are that pledges for modernization and repair will average between $15 and $20 per capita by the time the local better-housing canvass is completed. Rome's population is 21,000. To date, $210,569 in modernization and repair pledges have been obtained.

Small Repair Job Increased To Cover House

Glen Ellyn, Ill.—J. R. Buell, a leading citizen of this city, expanded an original intention of completing a $300 modernization job into a $5,000 rejuvenation of his property.

Twenty men were given employment on the Buell project.

Mr. Buell, in a desire to cooperate, signed a pledge for $500 after a call by one of the better housing canvassers. Several men immediately found work remodeling the porch of the Buell residence. Results were so satisfactory to Mr. Buell when the porch was completed that he decided to remodel the hallway next. This was only the beginning.

After he remodeled the hallway, he enclosed the entrance porch and transformed it into a modern sun room. These striking improvements made the out-moded living room look shabby in contrast. So Mr. Buell decided to double the size of the living room by extending the house some 60 feet. This process continued until virtually the entire floor was modernized. His enthusiasm next led him into the basement where he built a billiard room, a play room, and finally a bar. The bathroom took on new charm, being remodeled in Copenhagen blue and black. Mr. Buell built the play room and furnished it as his children directed.

Paint Under Porch

The under side of a porch floor should be included in every exterior painting job. Moisture and dampness will then be prevented from coming through and blistering the paint on top. Boards can be painted before laying in the case of new homes.

Women's Club Units Pledge FHA Support

Washington, D. C.—With the number increasing daily, 1,624 units of various women's clubs and organizations in 43 states have, since April 1, pledged full support and cooperation with the Better Housing Program of the Federal Housing Administration.

Thirty-five clubs and associations with groups in virtually every state have already been lending support to the movement to focus the attention of the women of America upon the importance and value of the Better Housing Program. The direct approach to the women of the country has been given new impetus by the appointment of 37 women field representatives.

The message of better homes and woman's part in home maintenance is being projected farther with a movement now under way to incorporate existing women's committees with women's divisions in better housing groups. Women field representatives are now encouraging selections of representative women to head these new divisions.

Plan Meetings
In every locality plans are under way to carry the message of better housing to meetings of organizations that pledge interest and cooperation. Either a woman field representative, chairmen of women's divisions, or others will address such groups of women to acquaint them with the opportunities offered by the modernization credit plan and the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the Federal Housing Administration. Attention has been concentrated on women because they are the actual home-makers and are credited with the expenditure of a large portion of the national family income. Widespread interest and enthusiasm is evidenced from all quarters in the women's movement. The new activity has reached into virtually every nook and corner of the country. It is expected that there will be a marked increase in the number of unit groups pledging cooperation before May 1.

Organizations
National organizations already participating in the women's movement include:

Parents Teachers Association, Daughters American Revolution, Republican Women's Club, Delphian Clubs, Federation of Women's Clubs, Council of Jewish Women, Smith College Club, League of Women Voters, Council of Catholic Women, Young Women's Christian Association, Girl Scout Councils, Junior League, Democratic National Committee Women's Division, Better Homes in America, Board of Education, Political Study Club, League of American Pen Women, Quota Club, International Graduate Nurses Association, Order Eastern Star, American Association of University Women, American Federation of Sociologists Clubs, Federation of Business and Professional Women, Wellesley Club, Christ Child Society, Garden Club of America, Twentieth Century Club, New Ambury Club, National Women's Club, Farm and Home Economics Association, Zonta International, Bureau of Home Economics, Extension Service of United States, Federal Council of Churches, national association and housing officials' home-economic departments and state extension services.

COLONIAL DESIGN

Colonial in design, its exterior walls are a happy combination of wood shingles and natural stone painted white. The roof is covered with natural wood shingles, which are allowed to weather and take on a dark gray color. The foundation planing has been planned to give the house an appearance of "naturalness," a sense of "belonging" to that particular spot.

On the first floor, there are four generous-sized rooms and a bath. The designer has been most generous in his allowance for closet space. Altogether, there are ten. The bedroom on the first floor has a divided closet, a convenient arrangement for separating a couple's wearing apparel. Upstairs, in the front of the house, there is a large closet for storing trunks, suit cases, and the like.

The kitchen and dining room arrangement is very good, having, as it does, the built-in cases and breakfast room in between. Also in the kitchen are additional built-in cabinets, with work space on either side of the sink. The bathroom is a complete one, with space allowed for a heating room, fuel room, laundry room, cool or storage room, and the possibility of a recreation room.

Because of its compact and efficient arrangement, the cost of this home should be comparatively small. There is, however, but one way to determine accurately, and it will be in your locality. That is to send $1 for the working drawings to Home Features Service, 44 North Ave., N. E., Atlanta, Georgia. From them a local contractor can make accurate estimate on the construction cost.

W. C. Slade and Wife Killed in Auto Crash

A head-on automobile collision Sunday on the crest of Bloomingburg mountain in Sullivan county resulted in the death of William C. Slade, 45, manager of the Van Dyne Oil Company at Binghamton, and his wife, Doris, 37, who were on their way from their home in Binghamton to enter a dog in the Montgomery show. Boyd D. Thomas and his wife, Mrs. Grace Lee also of Binghamton, were taken to Horton Memorial Hospital at Middletown in a critical condition.

The accident happened when the Ford car in which the Binghamton people were riding was struck by a north bound car operated by George Lee of Newark, N. J., who claimed to be a welder by trade and enroute to a job in Sullivan county. State Troopers who investigated the accident, were told that Lee claimed he had fallen asleep at the wheel of his car. The car in which the injured people were riding was being driven by Thomas.

Retail Grocers Enjoy Dinner-Dance At Golden Rule Inn

More than 300 grocers and their wives and friends attended the dinner-dance and entertainment at Golden Rule Inn, Sunday night, sponsored by the Poughkeepsie, Kingston and Newburgh Retail Grocers' Association. It was one of the most successful social functions ever sponsored by the merchants with arrangements by Martin Schleede of the Ulster Provision Dealers' Association.

Guests of honor at the speakers' table were Frank Myers of Standard Brands, Morris Shipley of the National Sugar Refinery, Frank McGaull, New York Central Railroad, Conrad Fred, past president of the New York State Grocers' Association; Moore Gates of the William T. Reynolds Co., C. T. Bennett, president of the U. P. A.; Robert Miller, secretary of the New York State Retail Grocers' Association; John Coyle, president of the New York State Grocers' Association.

The speakers were introduced by Martin Schleede, the toastmaster, who extended a welcome to all at the beginning of the program and provided a real social evening, which materialized in a routine of things described by Mr. Schleede. As an arranger, "Marty" is in the top of the grocers' league.

Although all the guests, when introduced, praised the grocers' associations, they were brief in making comments, not wishing to mar the excellent program of sociability and entertainment.

President C. T. Bennett of the U. P. A. said "It all depends on the cooperation we give to what an organization can do. We can become a real force in many ways, socially, and even politically with the proper force behind us. In Kingston we have a beautiful city and I want to extend a warm welcome to all."

Mr. Shipley of the National Sugar Refinery, compared the grocers' associations to the three Musketeers. "They fought one another's battles and won because they stuck together," he said. "You grocers should do the same. I want to compliment the New York Association—you grocers are doing a fine job."

Several of the other speakers devoted their words to urging the grocers to attend the various conventions, state and national, in order to lend their aid to the big organizations, which, they claimed, were doing splendid work.

Chicken dinner and speaking program, arranged by Al Shea, New York booking agent, featured Peggy Hanlon, songstress, and an announcer, Anita Jakob, acrobatic dancer, Louise and Mitchell of vaudeville fame in their comedy acrobatic act; Horton Spurr of the Zigzag Folies, the dancing comedians; Paxton, the "Memory Marvel," and Johnny Tucker and Jimmy Murray, two guests who put on an impromptu show, imitating radio stars and singing some of their own compositions. Little Maria Garber, daughter of one of the grocers, sang and danced, too, to the delight of the audience.

Kingston Woman Is Seeking a Divorce

Two Ulster county women sought divorces from their husbands in a special term held Friday at Monticello before Supreme Court Justice Sydney F. Foster.

An Enoch Arden decree was sought for Mrs. Gertrude Kessler of Ellenville, who testified her husband, Morris, whom she married in Washington, D. C., in 1929, left her on August 8 in Brooklyn with the remark that he was going out to search for a job and never returned.

Mrs. Leona Sam of Kingston, seeking a divorce from her husband, Charles Sam, with custody of two children and alimony of $15 weekly, named Mary Sabo of Kingston as correspondent. The Sam couple was married in 1923. One son is now with his mother, who testified, but the second son, whose custody she also seeks, has been living with his father since Sam drove up alongside the curb where the boy was playing three years ago, beckoned him into his car, and drove off with him.

Mayor C. J. Heiseleman has called a special meeting of the Common Council to be held Tuesday evening at the city hall for the purpose of voting on a resolution dedicating certain lands at the City Home over which the new East Chester street by-pass will be built, and for the purpose of making an appropriation and authorizing a loan for the local emergency relief bureau, whose funds are exhausted. Those are the only two matters to be taken up at the meeting Tuesday.

Man Drops Dead In Hudson Parade

Joseph McKinney, 53, of 82 Ingalls avenue, Troy, was fatally stricken yesterday afternoon during the parade of veterans in Hudson where the American Legion's third district conference was taking place. McKinney was marching with the Bugle and Drum Corps of Lieut. John Patton Post of Watervliet, of which he was drum instructor, when he collapsed. An inhaler crew worked over him for nearly an hour. Dr. Roger Bliss said death was due to a heart ailment. Hudson police notified Troy police of the man's death and the latter informed the family. The body was taken to the Redmond Funeral Parlor in Hudson.

Mrs. Lila Anselment said last night her father was apparently in good health when he left yesterday noon to go to Hudson. She said a short time ago he had suffered from a heart attack.

Mr. McKinney was born in Troy and had resided in the city all his life. For the past 35 years he had been employed as a shipper at the Burdette Smith Stove Foundry, Troy.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lillian Bradley, a daughter, Mrs. Anselment, and a son, Joseph McKinney, Jr.

Intense Search Made For 3 Missing Boys

Newark, N. J., April 29 (AP)—Members of the American Legion joined police today in a search through the treacherous meadows near Newark Airport for three missing boys.

From airplanes officials scanned the marshes for some trace of 8-year-old Frank Truggiano, his brother, Mario, 6, and Charles, 3, none of whom had been seen since they were last seen at the airport Saturday.

The three boys set out Friday night to watch an American Legion parade in downtown Elizabeth. They failed to return to their homes that night but police learned they had been at the airport Saturday. Several persons had seen the boys at the flying field, strolling from hangar to hangar, and staring wide-eyed at the giant transport planes.

The boys were seen at the airport several miles in every direction and Police Captain Flaherty expressed fear that the boys may have fallen into the quicksand.

The uncertain footing made the quest dangerous for the searchers themselves.

Dutch Schultz Left Syracuse on a "Trip"

Syracuse, N. Y., April 29 (AP).—Dutch Schultz, erstwhile power in the Bronx beef racket who "hid out" for a year and a half before surrendering to stand trial for income tax evasions—a trial that ended Saturday in a disagreement of a federal court jury—today had left Syracuse for an unannounced destination.

With a new trial set down for May 14, Schultz, continuing under the $75,000 bail fixed at Albany, left yesterday afternoon by motor and accompanied by an unidentified bodyguard. From the hotel where he stayed during his two-weeks trial came reports that he had bought fishing tackle Saturday afternoon while waiting for the long-thinking jury to make up its mind in his case.

From this bit of information the dopesters figured he might have gone into the fastnesses of the Adirondacks to spend part, if not all, of the 15 days before he is brought to court again.

Meanwhile federal operatives resumed their search for 20 witnesses who disappeared when needed for the trial, and a double bodyguard was placed on round-the-clock duty over three persons who were principal witnesses for the government in the first trial.

Those witnesses were: Miss Margaret School, comely brunette stenographer who worked in an office at 213 East 149th street, the Bronx—the location of Schultz's headquarters—and placed in the government's hands the much-disputed big black ledger that, the prosecution contended, contained records of Schultz's earnings in 1929, 1930 and 1931.

Dennis J. Mahoney, former manager of a Bronx branch bank, and Miss Edith Foster, bank employee, who testified as to deposits and withdrawals.

The trial cost the government $10,000. Of that amount, about $1,200 went to the jury, two alternates, and their four guards. Expenditures for witnesses reached approximately $4,200. Guards in the corridors and court room attendants, court stenographers, and incidentals rolled up the rest.

The court reporter transcribed 590,000 words in the trial. There were 1,600 pages of court notes, 156 government exhibits, and thousands of deposit slips, checks, books.

All the King's Horses Take Coach for Gallop

London, April 29 (AP).—England's gala jubilee season was unofficially opened today with a good, old-fashioned runaway.

King George's famous Windsor greys, bolting down Park Lane, smashed the royal coach into a bus and then into a Coster's barrow.

The ancient and honorable vehicle scored a clean victory in each instance, emerging with only one slight scratch on its gilt frame.

The relay coupage was sedately rehearsing its part in the May 6 procession when a double-decker bus clipped one of the Windsor greys on the flank. Then things started not as rehearsed.

With the top-hatted coachman clinging on for his life, the King's horses bolted. Before they could be brought under control by the outriders, the heavy coach took a parting swipe at the bus and slugged the coster's fruit-laden pushcart into submission.

Beyond the severe shaking-up the King's coachman received, there were no casualties and the coach was trundled back into the Buckingham Palace stables under its own horse-power.

There was no king in the back seat—only ballast.

Soviet Give Assurance.—Moscow, April 29 (AP).—The Soviet government in an official communique gave assurance that any military aid rendered under the projected Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact would depend upon the decision of the League of Nations council.

In the Garden

A hint on lawns
Weeds probably prevent the greatest problem in maintenance of a lawn. Unfortunately, there is only one practical method of eliminating the most troublesome: Crabgrass, dandelions and plantain—that is by hand weeding. A good rule for all hand weeding, and one especially effective in the case of dandelions: Cut the roots as far as possible below the surface with a spade, an awn-shaped knife, or some similar tool. Acetone sulphate will kill chickweed but ordinarily it is better to cut out the patches.

Alfred I. duPont 70, Dies Unexpectedly At Florida Estate Today

Jacksonville, Fla., April 29 (AP).—Alfred I. duPont, 70, organizer and former head of the duPont De Nemours and Company, explosive and chemical manufacturers, died unexpectedly early today at his estate, Epping Forest, just outside Jacksonville.

DuPont suffered a heart attack last Thursday but had rallied. His physician said he appeared to be recovering but he was stricken again last night and died a few hours later.

In 1902 duPont purchased the duPont company and organized it in its present form. He retired from that company a number of years ago.

In 1916 he came to Florida. At the time of his death he was one of the largest landowners in the state and was active as president of the Florida National Bank of Jacksonville.

Surviving are his widow, the former Miss Jessie D. Ball, a son, Alfred, Victor of Wilmington, five daughters, Mrs. Herman Rouff of Germany, Mrs. Reginald S. Hildekoper of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Elbert Dent of Philadelphia, Mrs. Victor Llewellyn of England, and Miss Denise duPont of Sweetbrier College, Va.

Alfred duPont took over the powder firm on the death of Eugene duPont.

Reorganized Firm.
In the next ten years, after he reorganized the firm and consolidated its various interests as the duPont De Nemours Company, the organization's assets increased from $15,000,000 to $82,000,000 with Alfred duPont as vice president.

All machinery used in the company's manufacture of black powder was designed by him, and the development of primative powder, as used by the United States government in its large calibre guns, is entirely the result of his ingenuity.

His activities outside of this state and the duPont De Nemours Company were wide and varied. He was president of the Grand Central Palace New York exhibition building, in 1918. The building was used in the advancement of international commerce, in line with duPont's theory that American buyers would be interested in foreign goods if displayed within their reach.

Four Radium Mines.
Among his other business interests were four radium mines at Central City, Col. He spent large sums in perfecting a radium testing and producing mill, and much of the radium produced was used in experiments for the treatment of cancer. He devoted considerable time and money in the direction of this philanthropy.

In political life, duPont was long a factor in Delaware, but his political moves were said to have created friction with other members of the family.

He became prominent in state politics shortly after becoming connected with the duPont interests. He allowed his control of the Republican party in the state to slip away, however, and for several years took little interest in political circles, until by a bold move in 1916 he regained control.

In 1920, he retired from political life, and since then had not been active.

His Early Life.
Alfred duPont was the son of Eleuthere Icenec duPont, grandson and namesake of the founder of the duPont powder mills. His mother was Charlotte Henderson duPont, daughter of General Archibald Henderson, of Virginia.

Educated in Andover, Mass., Academy and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he turned his attention, immediately upon graduation from the latter institution, to the duPont Powder Company, taking personal charge of the manufacture of explosives and the work of perfecting the machinery used in the making of gunpowder.

DuPont was married three times. His first wife was the former Miss Beulah Gardner, of Wilmington. They were divorced in 1906. They had four children.

A year after the divorce, duPont married Mrs. Alicia Bradford Maddox, who was his second cousin, in New York. She died three months after the marriage.

In 1921, at Los Angeles, duPont married Miss Jessie D. Ball, of Los Angeles, and formerly of Virginia.

Ten Persons Killed Over the Week-end.
Albany, N. Y., April 29 (AP).—Two airplane crashes and numerous automobile accidents took ten lives in upstate New York over the week-end and sent more than a score of persons to hospitals.

At Schoharie Saturday evening Lawrence J. Wicinski crashed to his death while standing at 200 feet. Near Elmira, Raymond Shaw, 22, of Monroe, Pa., and his cousin, Miss Sarah Schultz, 20, were injured critically as a plane he piloted crashed in an orchard.

Then again, if people didn't have to pay taxes, they'd probably put their money into real estate speculation.

Two Arrests Follow Automobile Accidents

One Woman in Kingston Hospital as Result of Injuries Received in Crash—Her Husband Arrested on Charge of Reckless Driving—Other Police Court Cases.

Louis Johnson, 21, a negro, of Glacoe, is under arrest on a charge of reckless driving, and his wife is in the Kingston Hospital with injuries received about 11:30 o'clock Sunday evening when the car driven by Johnson was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. F. W. Kirk of 231 Albany avenue. Johnson is also under arrest on a charge of operating a car without having an operator's license.

This morning in police court Johnson told Judge Culliton that his driving license was gone, and that his wife was still in the hospital. An X-ray is to be taken to ascertain if one of her arms was broken.

Judge Culliton adjourned the hearings in both cases until Wednesday morning.

Albert Pross of 104 Second avenue was arrested Sunday evening by Henry Widdle, who charged Pross with reckless driving following a collision between the cars driven by the two men. Pross this morning in court entered a plea of not guilty. He told the judge that he had several weeks' work waiting him in Albany and that he was expected to report there today for work. Mr. Widdle failed to appear, and the charge against Pross for lack of prosecution.

John Bonet of Big Indian, arrested for public intoxication Saturday on Crown street, was fined $5.

George Hoffer, 15 years old, arrested Sunday afternoon on a charge of driving a car with no registration plates and also with not having a driver's license, was paroled in custody of his parents for appearance in children's court today.

Italians Puzzled.
Rome, April 29 (AP).—The Italian people puzzled today over a cryptic warning by premier Mussolini that they faced a "hard period" to attain objectives "already precisely determined."

Il Duce uttered his ominous forecast of difficulties to come in an address to 15,000 Fascists gathered in Venezia yesterday.

To many in the throng, uncertain of the significance of Il Duce's remarks, the announcement brought to mind Italy's colonial ambitions in east Africa.

Evening of Pleasure, Excelsiors Promise
Tonight Excelsior Hose and all the friends of the firemen will gather at Huling's Barn, across the Washington avenue viaduct, for the annual ball, which, according to the plans completed by the committee in charge, gives promise of being one of the outstanding socials in the history of the fire company.

"Excelsiors have a reputation to uphold," said William B. Martin, foreman, in speaking of the ball, "and we are outdoing ourselves for tonight's event. It will be the biggest and best the firemen have ever staged. Everybody has worked exceptionally hard on it and will continue to do so until Cy Austin's Eight Aristocrats play 'Home Sweet Home'. We want every patron to have a good time."

The Aristocrats will open the program at 8 with dance music, and continue to play until 10:30. At this time the first floor show will go on. The second will start at 12:30.

Al Skeas, the booking agent who furnished entertainment for the Benedictine Hospital ball and for the big Grocers' party at Golden Rule Inn, Sunday night, has been engaged to pick the best performers for the firemen.

Mr. Skeas, who enjoyed many compliments after the hospital ball, Easter Monday, for furnishing "the best entertainment seen here at a social event of the kind," has promised the firemen a bill of acts on the same plane. His list includes Ingobart, fan and jungle dancer; Miss Anita Nyland, acrobatic dancer; Miss Betty Lloyd, singing comedienne, and Sammy Paige, funny blackface comedian.

Bad Break in 16-Inch Water Main on Sunday

Water pressure was extremely low in certain sections of the city on Sunday morning due to a bad break in the 16-inch water main as it passes under the West Shore Railroad tracks on Broadway. The main when it broke sent a gusher of water some 30 feet into the air on Broadway at the crossing until it was shut off by closing the emergency gates in the main by employees of the water department who were notified of the break.

In order to get down to the broken main it was necessary to dig down under the railroad tracks. The break occurred about 7 o'clock Sunday morning and repairs were completed about 5:30 o'clock that afternoon.

While repairs were being made it was necessary to have a policeman stationed at the crossing to handle traffic.

The water main which broke is one of the three big water mains that convey water into the city. It enters Broadway at Elmendorf street and runs down Broadway to Ferry street.

The sudden break in the main caused water pressure on the high points of the city to drop and several interesting tales are told. One of the members of the water board, it is said, was about to take his morning plunge in the bath tub at his home, but was forced to call it off, since there was not flow enough of water from the faucets to fill the tub. In many houses there was just a trickle of water as the faucets were turned on. Later in the morning, when the booster pump on Albany avenue was placed at work, pressure was gradually restored.

At no time during the day were houses entirely without water, even where the pressure was very low there was a trickle of water from the faucets.

Do you HATE TO MEET PEOPLE?

SOME of us are so bashful that whenever a new face appears before us we mentally duck away! Maybe it isn't shyness so much as simply not realizing how very interesting new acquaintances can be.

Some people are shy about new foods too. One family we know has had pork and beans every Saturday night for ten years, and they see no reason for changing!

How much more interesting life—and dinner!—would be for that family with a new kind of meat, a vegetable prepared some other way, a new style in dessert. New foods—new faces—brighten our days and help make living an exciting game.

North Rondout Socials Trim Kaslichs in Inaugural by 7-3 Before Crowd at Hasbrouck

The North Rondout Social Club auspiciously opened its baseball season before a large gathering of fans at Hasbrouck Park, Sunday afternoon, by defeating the Kaslich A. C., 7-3. Four runs in the eighth inning did the trick for the boys of Manager Jimmy DeCicco.

A two-bagger by Jimmy "Moose" Tiano fixed the setting for the rally in the eighth. Phil Komosa sent a Texas leaguer over first and a poor throw by "Pucker" Davis, the pitcher, accounted for two runs. Tommy Berardi singled, Tommy Lewis went to first on a free pass and "Milly" Berardi hit a single to center for two more runs.

Just before the rally the score was tied at 3-all, the Socials having knotted the count in the sixth inning. Haphazard fielding figured in the early scoring for both teams. Andy Celuch, started on the mound for the Kaslich club, and gave only three hits, but was the victim of poor support. Gus Wiedemann began the game for the North Rondouts, but surrendered the pitching task to Joe Boots after the upturners moved ahead.

Tommy Berardi and "Milly" Berardi led the Social Club hitters with two apiece. "Shep" Ascenzo hit twice for the billiardists and starred in the shortstop position.

GERMAN MEASLES ROB M. I. T. CREW OF BEST STROKE

Cambridge, Mass., April 29 (AP)—Just when Bill Haines, cheery rowing coach of Massachusetts Tech, thought he had found the answer to his stroke-oar problem in the person of his 144-pound son, Guy, an attack of German measles took a hand.

Guy, one of the east's most finished oarsmen, set the pace for the M. I. T. varsity in the opening regatta with Yale but the measles forced him temporarily out of the shell last week.

Captain Allan Mowatt, last year's pace-setter, was the M. I. T. stroke against Princeton and Harvard in the Commodore Cup race Saturday, with Willard Kirby promoted from the junior varsity to Mowatt's No. 2 oar. That will be the arrangement until Guy gets back.

Next followers of M. I. T.'s courageous but luckless crews have maintained that Guy should have been stroke oar for the varsity last year as well as the year before when he was stroking the Engineers' 150-pounders to a fair share of victories in major regattas.

The coach, however, always said his son was too light and searched high and low for a competent boat-oar.

Haines describes his first sight as "very backward, but with possibilities." The Engineers have given up the Poughkeepsie four-mile grid but want most of the crew's leading oarsmen in order.

Wilbur Dodgers Take Over May Parks, 13-12

In a slugfest at Wilbur, Sunday afternoon the Wilbur Dodgers nosed out the May Park A. C., 13-12, as Jerry Lynch and Lotus featured with the bat for the winners. Percy Crispell of the May Parkers poled two homers, each time with the bases loaded, to star for that club.

The Dodgers will try for their fifth win next Sunday at Wilbur when their opponents will be the Kingston Shamrocks.

Kelley Comes Through—By Pap

THE RACE WAS PART OF HIS CAMPAIGN TO BEING THE 1936 OLYMPIC MARATHON TITLE TO AMERICA

The gruelling Boston marathon never fails to produce its share of dramatic moments, and this year's race was no exception, but for real drama it would be hard to beat the pause Johnny Kelley, of Arlington, Mass., took within a mile or so of his winning goal.

With the apparently safe lead he had piled up over Pat Dengis of Baltimore, Kelley, stopped dead in his tracks as the wild applause which greeted his choppy stride died to a hush, and rose again in a wall of disappointment.

Kelley, doubled over in distress, was endeavoring to relieve himself of the glucose which he had taken in excess—in tablet form—as a stimulant. All the while the blue-shirted Dengis was cutting down the distance which separated him from the nauseated leader.

The little man from Arlington straightened up and broke into a run only to stop again after taking a dozen strides. The hundreds of marathon fans who lined the street pleaded with him, begged him to go on.

Olympics Main Goal
By that time the on-rushing Dengis was within 250 yards of the stricken Kelley. Once relieved, Kelley swung back into his flowing stride and increased his lead to 400 yards as he crossed the finish line. Undoubtedly the delay cost Kelley a record, for he fell short of Leslie Pawsen's record of 2:31:01 3-5 by only 1 minute and 5 2-5 seconds. Missing the record didn't bother Kelley—he was out to run fast enough to win and that was all. Next year, he said, "I'll go after the record along with the Olympic marathon in Germany."

Enthusiastic Crowd Out For First Skeet Shoot On New Field

A very enthusiastic crowd helped to initiate the new Skeet field of the Ulster County Gun Club Sunday. Thirty-two different shooters took part in the various events, and at one time over one hundred spectators were counted on the grounds.

The Skeet team of the Lyman Gun Sight Company gave an exhibition of shooting that was enjoyed by all. It was remarked many times by the spectators how easy it looked to see these experts break the targets, but when one got on the stands to shoot it was not so easy. Much valuable advice and instruction was given the local shooters by the members of the Lyman team.

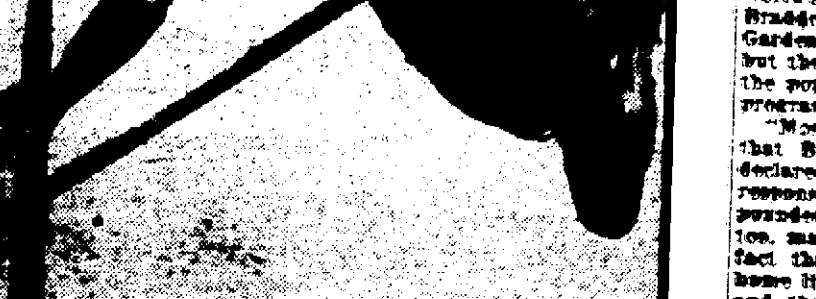

The Ulster County Gun Club was complimented by the visitors on the lay out of the field and the exceptional sky line. Skeet being such a new form of shooting for most of those present and taking part in the events, that the scores are low compared to the scores these same shooters make at regular trap-shooting.

They were advised, however, that it only requires practice to make the Skeet targets as easy as regular ones. All were convinced that Skeet is wonderful practice for field shooting.

The club will hold practice shooting at the new field each Thursday evening from 5 o'clock until dark. It is hoped that a team can be formed here to compete with other Skeet clubs in this vicinity. Sunday scores:

Lyman, 24; Pickering, 24; Hull, 24; Kohl, 21; Cooley, 20; Brown, 18; J. Van Gonic, 12; H. Winter, 20; Fromer, 18; Martin, 18; Dr. Coles, 17; Sutliff, 16; N. Shaltis, 16; Hyatt, 16; Blood, 13; F. Relay Carnivals Produce Records

New York, April 29 (AP)—The Olympic games are still more than a year away, but Uncle Sam's agile young nephews have launched another athletic spree calculated to give their rivals something more to worry about, from Helsinki to Yokohama.

From coast to coast today the echo of sensational track and field performances signaled the advent of the 1935 outdoor campaign on all major fronts.

Favored by balmy spring weather college athletes at the two great relay carnivals, Drake and Pennsylvania, produced a flock of record achievements Saturday. On the west coast a sturdy post-graduate, Bill Graber, pole vaulted to a new world record height of 14 feet 5 1/2 inches in the day's crowning individual feat.

Crab celebrated his return to form by breaking his own record of 14 feet, 4 inches, made in the 1932 Olympic tryouts.

Jesse Owens, Ohio State's negro sophomore, at the Drake relays created a new American record of 26 feet, 1 1/2 inches in the broad jump, besides tying the carnival mark of 9.5 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

Another great negro athlete, Eulace Peacock of Temple, cleared a fraction over 25 feet to win the broad jump at the Penn relays and then, trounced Herman Neugebauer of Tulane sensation, in the new carnival record time, of 10.6 seconds for 100 meters.

The Penn relays uncovered another sophomore sensation in Anton Kishon of Bates College. The former Worcester (Mass.) Academy youth hurled the discus beyond 151 feet and tossed the 16-pound hammer over 167 feet to win both events.

Braddock Series Concludes Tomorrow

Challenger for Heavyweight Crown Makes Hit Over Radio in Interview With Kate Smith—17,000 Letters of Praise Received.

"Braddock, 'Trial Horse,' Gets in the Money" is the subject of the next and concluding story in the series about the challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world, which will appear in The Freeman Tuesday.

The story will tell how three winning fights in a year against favored foes brought the Jerseyman his chance at the coveted title and why he thinks he can lick Max Baer, the champ.

Following a recent program over the air, it was said that never before in the history of radio had such a wonderful response been received after a fight broadcast as the Kate Smith interview with James J. Braddock and Manager Joe Gould over $5 coast to coast stations of the Columbia network. The opinion was general that Braddock and Gould made the best fistie great star combination.

Ted Collins, New Smith's manager, revealed yesterday that 17,000 letters have been received from all over the country not only praising the decision of the challenger for the world's heavyweight championship—Braddock battles Max Baer at the Garden Lane Island Bowl, June 12—but the splendid manner with which the popular Kate Smith handled the program.

"Most of the letters contain hopes that Braddock will win the title," declared Collins. "They liked Jim's responses to all the questions propounded by Kate Smith, and Gould, too, made interesting answers. The fact that Braddock is a married man living with his wife and three children made a tremendous hit with millions of friendly listeners. Sixty per cent of the letters also sought information on how and where to buy tickets for the fight."

Time to Form.		NATIONAL LEAGUE
The uncertainties of baseball—which go a long way toward making a great game—seldom have been better illustrated than in the current American League race.		Standing of The Clubs
In less than two weeks of campaigning the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Browns have run true to form, the Indians by racing to the top of the standing and the Browns by sliding to seventh place. The others, however, have been taking part in a round of upsels.		New York	7
The slump of Detroit's champion Tigers, who tumbled to the cellar only to climb to sixth place yesterday by defeating Cleveland 5 to 3 for their third victory and the Indians' second defeat, is just one example.		Brooklyn	6
For six straight games last week the Tigers couldn't do anything right. Then they did some real hitting behind young Joe Sullivan, who made his first major league start before a crowd of 26,000. Detroit collected 12 blows, including Hank Greenberg's homer, while Sullivan not only hurled effectively in the clutches but drove in two runs.		Chicago	6
Continue Backward.		Cincinnati	6
The Red Sox, who sailed into first place at the start, continued their tumble into the second division as they made three more errors for a total of 16 in four games, wasted a lot of hits and took a 5-3 beating from the Senators.		Pittsburgh	6
Chicago's White Sox, another big surprise, continued their heavy slugging to challenge Cleveland's lead when they landed seven hits and five errors in their opponents' good for a 5 to 4 victory over the Browns.		St. Louis	5
One of the blow was Zek Bonura's sixth circuit swing and the club's 14th within a week. John Whitehead, rookie hurler, pitched steadily for his third straight triumph.		Boston	4
Yanks, Giants Win.		Philadelphia	3
The Yankees maintained their third place tie with Washington by downing the Athletics 7 to 5, largely because of Earle Combs' homer with the bases full.
The Giants, who took the National League lead Saturday, pulled further ahead of Brooklyn when they blanked the Phillies 3 to 0 on Hal Schumacher's one hit pitching. A doubtful single by Orville Jorgens, which might easily have been scored as an error, and a ninth inning walk spoiled a perfect game.
The Dodgers took a 5-3 licking from the reviving Braves when they failed to hit Bob Smith in the pinches while Boston made its 11 blows off Van Mungo count.
The National League mound sensation, rookie Cy Blanton, of Pittsburgh, sang up his third straight victory, 3 to 2, at the expense of the Cardinals and Dizzy Dean: Blanton allowed eight hits while Arky Vaughan nipped Dean for a homer, double and single.
A crowd of 23,514 paid at Cincinnati to see the aspiring Reds lose to the Cubs, 4 to 1, on a three-run ninth inning rally and the five hit hurling of Bill Lee.

"ONE LOOK AT MY COLLECTION OF BLOW-OUT SHOTS AND YOU'D NEVER GAMBLE ON TIRES"

Says A. J. Sarno, Staff Photographer, International News Photos, Inc.

IF YOU think blow-out accidents don't happen altogether too often, you ought to take a look at my collection of tragic blow-out "shots." One minute you're sailing along smoothly. The next instant, without any warning, BANG! Your tire blows out—your car is snatched out of your control, and luck determines the rest. Believe me, I don't want the boys taking pictures of my "last ride." That's why my car's equipped with Goodrich Silvertons.

Don't you want to keep danger a stranger? Don't you want to ride on the safest tires you can buy? Then get Silvertons—the only tire in the world that gives you Golden Fly blow-out protection.

Go to your Goodrich dealer. See the new Silvertons. Notice the extra-thick husky-clothed tread.

Then you'll know why Silvertons also protect you from dangerous "tail-spin" skids—why they give you months of extra "trouble-free" mileage. Play safe. Put Goodrich Silvertons on all four wheels now. They cost no more than other standard tires!

Senator Nye Praises Roosevelt Calibre

Washington, April 29 (AP).—Senator Nye (R-N. D.) said today he would prefer to vote for President Roosevelt in 1936 if the Republicans nominate "a Hoover, a Mills, a Fletcher or anyone of that type."

The man who is directing the Senate munitions committee's investigation gave his thoughts today in an interview.

"Which of the available Republicans would you support?" he was asked.

"Well, if they keep on persecuting Bronson Cutting about his senatorial election down in New Mexico they'll force him into a front position. I am an admirer of his," Nye answered.

"And I like Vandenberg (the junior senator from Michigan). In fact I think I'd vote for him over Roosevelt."

He was asked whether he intended working for the nomination of Vandenberg.

"It all depends on the line-up of the opposition," was the reply. "If I see a Hoover, a Mills or a Fletcher behind some other man, I imagine I'd work for Vandenberg."

"But if a Hoover, a Mills or a Fletcher is working for Vandenberg, then I'd begin to wonder," he added with a smile.

"How about a third party movement?" was another question.

"I imagine that most of the Liberals do not want a third party," he said. "It's too much of an uphill fight to make a victory probable."

You know in many states it is even hard to get a third party slate on the ballot.

"It would seem better to concentrate on getting a good nominee in one of the two present major parties."

How about yourself as a presidential candidate?

Oh, he laughed, "that's so far from likelihood that I never give it a thought. I've seen so many men get the presidential bee in their bonnet that I determined long ago never to allow myself to think about it."

"You can say that I am for Roosevelt if the Republican nominee is one of the Old Guard or the instrument of the Old Guard."

"Public office," says an ex-officer, "is the most thankless work in the world." And how they love it!
